New British Cabinet In Office

TRI-PARTY BODY TRIES TO SOLVE BUDGET PUZZLE

MacDonald Now Premier as Individual, Not as La- bor Chieftain

London.—(AP)—Ramsay MacDonald's second Labor government passed into history today in the presence of King George and his first non-partisan ministry was formally launched on its mission of balancing Great Britain's books.

The king received the retiring ministers of the old regime at Buckingham palace and they handed over their seals of office. An hour later the tri-party members of the new cabinet called on him and he convened a privy council at which they were sworn in.

About 2,000 people stood outside the palace as the resigning officials came to surrender their authority. No longer using the official automobiles, they came in taxicabs or on foot.

Prime Minister MacDonald started his day as usual with a walk in St. James park, accompanied by his daughter Sheila, and was back at his desk at No. 10 Downing-st before 9 o'clock.

Having played his constitutional role in the nation's political drama, the king prepared to return to his castle at Balmoral, Scotland, from which he was summoned Sunday when the cabinet split on the question of finances.

Mr. MacDonald became, in a manner of speaking, a British dictator today as he presided over the first cabinet meeting of the new non-partisan government which is preparing to cut $600,000,000 from the budget expenditures.

In Another Capacity

Charged by the king with forming the emergency government, the prime minister holds his post of power as an individual but not as representative of organized Labor which is now marshalling solid opposition to its former leader.

The program which he laid out today was not much different from that which he and Chancellor Philip Snowden tried to force through with the Labor government. The platform of the new ministry is virtually the same as that on which the Labor government split and fell.

It is proposed that the greater part of the money needed to balance the budget be made available by reducing expenses instead of by increasing taxes.

Probably the largest economy will be made by cutting the weekly unemployment dole by 10 per cent.

This means a jobs man and his wife who now receive about $5.25 a week will get about $4.65. The allowance of two shillings a week (about 50 cents) for each child of such a couple is not to be reduced.

The worker's contribution to the dole fund will be increased to 25 cents a week instead of 15 cents as at present.

Another substantial economy which is proposed is a reduction in the pay of government employees. Cabinet ministers who get $25,000 a year would lose 20 per cent. Other civil service salaries would be cut on a sliding scale from 20 per cent down.

The lower grades of civil servants would not be affected, but even they would be subject to a cut in the bonus they now receive. Even members of the house of commons may have to take a 5 per cent cut in their $20,000 salaries.

Other Reductions

School teachers and police would lose about 12 1/2 per cent of their pay. Soldiers and sailors would take a smaller reduction.

Savings on education are expected to reach about $75,000,000 in the fighting services $45,000,000. The health services would be cut by $5,750,000 and agriculture by $5,250,000. About $40,000,000 would be taken from the road fund and proposed.

Three Perish While Fire Razes Home

Mother and Two Children Die in Burning Dwelling at Port Andrew

Blue River, Wis.—(AP)—The mother and two children of the John Faulkner family burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home at Port Andrew, near here, today.

The dead: Mrs. John Faulkner, 25; Esther Faulkner, 2, and Bessie Faulkner, 3.

Mr. Faulkner, 30, and Frank LaGene, 38, a roomer at the Faulkner residence here, were seriously burned. Mrs. Faulkner died at a Richland Center hospital where she, her husband and the roomer were taken.

A three-month old baby was saved by its grandmother who rushed into the burning dwelling after she had fled into the street. Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner then entered the house in a vain attempt to rescue the other children.

An explosion in a gas stove was believed the cause of the fire.

Neighbors of the Faulkners were helpless to fight the flames inasmuch as the village has no fire department.

FORMER PRIME MINISTER OF JAPAN IS DEAD

Yuko Hamaguchi Rose from Humble Start to High Place in Government

Tokio.—(AP)—Yuko Hamaguchi, former premier of Japan, who won the appellation "warrior for peace" by his espousal of the London naval treaty despite the opposition of influential groups of extreme patriots and militarists, died here today. He was 61 years old.

Heading the government during the negotiations at London, Hamaguchi succeeded in obtaining Japan's adherence to the naval treaty only by a strenuous fight which occurred the displeasure of the ultra-patriots and advocates of a strong navy.

Nov. 14, 1929, after ratification of the treaty, Hamaguchi was shot and seriously wounded by Tameo Sagaya, 23, who was described as having been patriotically misguided or mentally deranged.

While Hamaguchi recovered slowly, Baron Shidehara, the foreign minister, became acting head of the government. Hamaguchi resumed his duties March 10, 1931, but they proved too strenuous and he submitted to two operations early in April. Subsequently he resigned and Reijiro Wakatsuki, the present premier, succeeded him.

Although Yuko Hamaguchi to the world, he was born April 3, 1870, third son of the inconspicuous family of Tenehira Mizuguchi at the village of Godasani, Shikoku island. When 19 years old he was adopted into the wealthy Hamaguchi family and later married his eldest daughter, Natsu.

Graduating in 1895 from the To-kyo Imperial university as a law student, Hamaguchi spent his entire career in the service of his country in many capacities.

Ex-Mayor Dies

J. Austin Hawes, 72, mayor of Appleton from 1918 to 1921 inclusive, was found dead at his home at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. It is thought that he died sometime yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hawes had been active in Appleton business and public life for over 50 years.

J. AUSTIN HAWES, FORMER MAYOR, DIES SUDDENLY

Heart Attack Cause of Death at Home Tuesday Afternoon

J. Austin Hawes, 72, former Appleton mayor, died suddenly of a heart attack at his home, 324 E. Washington-st., Tuesday afternoon. A son of Raymond Merrifield, a neighbor, found him sitting in a chair in the living room when he came to call about 8 o'clock last night. Apparently he had been dead since 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Hawes served Appleton as mayor for two terms, from 1918 to 1921 inclusive. He came into office immediately following the switch from the commission to the aldermanic form of government in 1918. He was succeeded in the spring of 1923 by Henry Reuter. During his administration the construction of both Lawe and Cherry-st bridges was started, although the latter bridge was not dedicated until the term of Mayor John Goodland, Jr.

The decision to build both bridges came after a long battle in the common council over which end of town should have the one bridge that was planned. A 5 to 6 deadlock made it impossible to build only one bridge, so finally a financing plan which made it possible to build both was arranged.

Bank Records Identified In Senate Funds Inquiry

Reveal Bishop Cannon Paid $5,000 in Notes Held in Virginia

Washington.—(AP)—Bank records showing that $5,000 in notes held by a Virginia bank were paid off by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., during the 1928 presidential campaign when he headed the anti-Smith committee of Virginia, were identified today before the senate campaign funds committee.

The committee is seeking to determine the disposition of more than $65,000 given to the bishop by E. C. Jameson of New York, for use in the campaign and whether the law was violated in failure to report expenditure of all the funds.

John A. Booker, cashier of the Citizens Bank and Trust company of Blackstone, Va., related that the southern Methodist churchman had a checking account in his bank for 20 or 30 years.

Chairman Nye of the committee observed the Blackstone account showed "a total of Cannon notes for an even $5,000."

One of the notes, he said, was for Edward Cannon.

"The record shows," continued Nye, "$5,000 in Cannon notes were paid off between the period from June 1, 1928, to March 2, 1929."

Booker said that was the fact.

Looking over the statement Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, said "it is evident that a number of po-

AUTO MENACED BY BIG THROG OF WELCOMERS

Police Battle to Keep En- thusiastic Japanese from Flying Couple

Tokio.—(AP)—Men, women and children fought the police here today in a wild scramble to get a glimpse of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. The famous couple entered Tokio by train this evening after landing at Gasumigaura naval base, 50 miles from the capital, the official terminus of their 7,132 mile flight from New York.

At Ueno station the Lindberghs encountered probably the most dense crowd in their experience. Several times the crowd became unmanageable and for a time it looked as though the Lindbergh automobile would be overruled.

The police were taxed to the utmost to keep the crowd away.

Completing the last lap of their long flight, the Lindberghs arrived at Kasumigaura at 2:39 p. m. (12:09 A. M. E. S. T.) after a 513 mile flight from Nemuro. They were received by Admiral Abo, minister of the navy; W. Cameron Forbes, American ambassador, and other notables while a crowd sent up a chorus of cheers.

Admiral Abo, in uttering the initial welcome, praised both Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh for their flight across the Pacific and hailed them as messengers of peace, tending to strengthen the friendly relations between Japan and the United States.

Lindbergh, in responding, stressed his appreciation of the hospitality extended from all quarters and said he and Mrs. Lindbergh were "looking forward with great anticipation to spending a short time in Japan and having the opportunity of meeting and knowing more of your people."

HEAVY DEATH TOLL IN HUPEH PROVINCE

Flood List Estimates Vary from 25,000 to 200,000— Millions Destitute

Shanghai.—(AP)—Authoritative estimates of the death toll from floods in central China still were lacking today, but unofficial figures placed the loss of life at 25,000 to 200,000 in Hupeh province alone.

An area of many thousands of square miles between Nanking and the trillies of Hankow, Wuchang and Yangtze is submerged, and the tops of hills rising above the murky waters. Tens of thousands of persons are destitute, and it is feared many more thousands must perish before the waters subside.

Although the Yangtze river at Hankow continues to subside from its record high level, its boiling current carries away its daily quota of more than 1,000 bodies.

EARLY RULING DUE ON BAKER'S APPEAL

Judge Belden Expected to Hand Down Decision After Sept. 4

Racine.—(AP)—A decision in the appeal of Henry C. Baker from the police and fire commission's order removing him from office as chief of police will be made by Circuit Judge E. B. Belden after Sept. 4, the date fixed for filing of briefs and records.

Judge Belden ordered City Attorney Cornelius Colbert, counsel for the commission, specifically to file an answer to an affidavit in which Frank Miller alleged that during the commission's deliberations he was delegated to offer Chief Baker immunity from further prosecution if he, the chief, would resign.

The affidavit was filed during yesterday's hearing by Attorneys Gilbert Brach and Jerome Foley, counsel for Baker, who was conversing at his home from a stroke suffered about 10 days ago. Miller is a member of the police and fire commission.

A request for a change of venue made on behalf of Jacob Schulz, president of the commission, was denied at the outset of the hearing on the ground the police and fire commission is a judicial body and cannot file a writ against another judicial body.

Records of the commission's proceedings were requested by Judge Belden when Baker's counsel alleged the commission failed to consider all evidence in connection with charges of malfeasance produced against him.

Water Works Secretary For Many Years before the old Appleton Water Works plant was purchased by the city, Mr. Hawes was secretary of the plant. He was active in water works affairs in 1904 when the old hydrant rental suit between the city and the water works of Appleton, which was settled just this year, was started. His connection with the water plant ended with the purchase of the company by the city in 1911, although during his two terms as mayor he was a member of the water commission.

RADIO ANNOUNCER'S LIFE THREATENED

Telephone Warnings Laid Either to Crank or New York Gangsters

New York.—(AP)—Telephone threats against his life have put John S. Young, radio announcer, on his guard.

Not only is he carrying a gun under an official permit in defiance of any possible activity against him, but two policemen were assigned today to give him a helping hand.

The threats, believed to have been made either by gangsters or cranks, followed Young's appearance as announcer at the broadcast of the New York city anti-gangster rally on Monday night by WJZ of the National Broadcasting company.

Shortly after noon yesterday he was called to the phone.

"You're a wise guy," said a voice sounding like that of a young man. "Your life might be worth only two cents to you, but it's worth thousands to me. We'll teach you wise guys to keep out of these gangster affairs," the speaker continued.

Young, believing it was one of his friends attempting a joke, cut off the conversation by hanging up. Ten minutes later another call came in. It was a different voice but conveyed the same message, with embellishments.

After that, Young decided it either was a crank or some one who felt that threats would bring money from his employers.

Five other NBC employees also have received telephone threats, including Walter Mills, scheduled to sing at the rally, but who was replaced on the program by another singer.

SEE RESIGNATION OF VITS OR CUNNINGHAM

MILWAUKEE.—(AP)—A statement of George Vits, Republican national committeeman, today gave authentic- ity to previously published rumors of the likelihood of the resignation either of W. Frank Cunningham, deputy prohibition administrator for the eastern Wisconsin district, or of United States Attorney Levi Ban- croft.

For months, Milwaukee newspapers have hinted at a more or less open warfare between the two officials. Yesterday Charles P. Sisson, assistant attorney general in charge of personnel, conferred with Vits at Manitowish.

Vits refused to state what recommendations he made to Sisson, but admitted he made recommendations concerning the two departments at the request of the attorney general.

"I've known about the situation and have been acquainting myself with facts concerning it for more than six months," he said. "It has been more or less a thorn in the side of the Republican party."

BULLETINS

Lisbon, Portugal.—(AP)—Rebellion flared briefly today against the administration of President Oscar Carmona but failed completely. After a battle between government troops and revolting soldiers of the Third artillery regiment, in which several were killed and wounded, the rebels, who were completely beaten, hoisted a white flag and surrendered. The capital now presents a Sunday aspect.

Indianapolis.—(AP)—A man identified by police as Joe Miller, a half-breed Indian, was arrested here today and held for Kenosha, Wis., authorities who advised he was wanted in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Ann Patterson of Chicago.

600 GARBAGE TRUCK DRIVERS ON STRIKE

Chicago.—(AP)—About 600 city garbage truck drivers and helpers went on strike today demanding a raise in the wages. They have been working from two to four days a week and city officials said they could not meet the demand because funds were lacking.

Officials of the sanitary teamsters union which called the strike said that if it continues 1,200 street cleaners will be thrown out of jobs without the drivers to remove the refuse.

ACQUITS OFFICERS IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Milwaukee.—(AP)—Dispatches from Washington yesterday quoted Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition enforcement director, as freeing Milwaukee prohibition agents from responsibility in the electrocution of Mrs. Helen Vasilevich, Milwaukee.

Mrs. Vasilevich died when she reached up to turn on an electric light in the wine-soaked basement of her home where prohibition agents had dumped liquid after a raid. The coroner held the death accidental.

Woodcock, however, censured the agents for dumping the wine in the basement, terming it an "error in judgment." He said there "will be no more pouring out wine in homes or establishments railed."

ALLEGED MAIL TRUCK ROBBER IDENTIFIED

Austin, Minn.—(AP)—Sheriff Ira Sack today said three witnesses have identified pictures of Reinhold Engel, St. Paul, as one of four men who robbed a mail truck here Saturday.

Engel was arrested Saturday at St. Paul on charges of participating in the robbery of a bank at Alden, Ia. He is at liberty on bond in connection with another bank robbery at Grantsburg, Wis. Postal inspectors said they planned to charge Engel with robbing the mails.

GROUND CREW TAKES AKRON FROM HANGAR

Akron, O.—(AP)—The Akron, queen of the air, poked her nose out of her giant dock early today for her first visit into the open air.

A ground crew of 250 men "walked" the ship, the largest dirigible in the world, outside of the hangar in the dress rehearsal to prepare for the first flight next month.

With the first launching rehearsal completed, the program of construction tests inside the dock was ready to be resumed. Overhead tests several days ago strained one portion of the ship and as a result greater localized strength will be built into several sections. The maiden flight will not be made before Sept. 5. Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation and many officials said.

1,000 Blooming Dahlias Entered In Flower Show

Nearly 1,000 blooming dahlias of more than 75 varieties, an evergreen nursery display of curly, creeping bent, and the state entomology educational exhibit on common plant diseases will be three of the outstanding features of the fall flower show opening Saturday afternoon in the armory under the auspices of the chamber of commerce. The show will close at 6 o'clock Sunday evening.

Flower growers from all parts of the valley are urged to display their late summer blooms, whether they enter their flowers on a competitive basis or not. According to the rules and regulations of anyone deriving any part of his income from flowers or bulbs is automatically declared professional and barred from receiving prizes. These people are urged to display their flowers, however. These regulations are followed because the purpose of the flower and garden division is to increase an interest in amateur flower raising in the community.

New Award System

The award system will be a little different this year with first, second, third and fourth prize ribbons counting points toward a grand prize.

First prize ribbons will count 10 points, second prize seven points, third prize winners five points and fourth ribbons three points.

A silver vase, donated by the Fischer Jewelry store, will be awarded for class prizes and the sweepstake prize. Petibone-Peabody Co. will award the sweepstake prize for the best single flower in the show, which counts 10 points toward the grand prize. In addition to the cash prize in the various flower groups, $30 worth of dahlias will be given away as special awards for flowers not listed and deserving a prize. The Officer's cup, won two years in succession by E. W. Young, 721 E. Alton-st, will be given for the most outstanding basket of flowers. The Appleton Post-Crescent cup, won by Mrs. Henry Schaeffer, route 3, will be awarded for the outstanding vase of flowers.

The flower show will open at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, but flowers will be received for exhibit from 6:45 Saturday morning until 11:30. After 11:30 the armory will be closed until 2 o'clock for judging of flowers and their arrangement for the show. Saturday's show will last until 9 o'clock Saturday night. Sunday the show will open at 3 a. m.

INVESTIGATES FIRE AT FOND DU LAC SHOP

Fond du Lac.—(AP)—V. E. Finnegan, deputy state fire marshal, today was investigating a blaze that destroyed the Rickert clothing shop here with damage estimated by owners at $8,000.

Local officials said they were unable to determine the cause of the fire. A policeman who was at the scene of the fire Sunday said the front of the building caved outward as if from an explosion and the interior was found in flames although a short time before there was no sign of fire.

3 ACCUSED OF ASSAULT ON RESORT OPERATOR

Ashland.—(AP)—Three Mineral Lake men were held in jail here today in lieu of $2,500 bail each on charges of assault upon Martin Hanson, Chicago, operator of a French lake summer resort. Hanson claims shots have been fired repeatedly at his resort with intention of disturbing patrons. A fourth man is sought. The two were arraigned yesterday and the case continued to Sept. 1.

Car Salesman, Girl, 18, Are Shooting Champions

Vandavia, O.—(AP)—An 18-year-old Iowa school girl and a Detroit automobile salesman stood today at the head of the amateur trapshooting ranks of America.

Karl Maust, Detroit, who sells automobiles as a vocation, shot his way out of a four-way tie to capture the men's North American clay target championship in the feature yesterday of the thirty second annual grand American Trapshooting tournament of the Amateur Trapshooters association.

To Jeanette Jay, 18, of Waverly, Ia., went the North American women's crown after a shoot-off with Mrs. H. E. Crisby of Oklahoma City. Miss Jay, a student of Wartburg college and Iowa state champion, shattered 191 pigeons out of a possible 200, and in the shoot-off ran 25 consecutive targets to out score Mrs. Crisby.

Maust gave one of the most remarkable and brilliant exhibitions of shooting ever to grace the Grand American. He succeeds Gus Payne, former Oklahoma City Indian, as king of amateur shooters. Payne, winner the last two years, did not compete this year.

The Detroit sniper tied at 100 out of 200 with Frank Troch, Portland, Oregon; George Slaughter, Benton Harbor, Mich., and Dr. F. L. Boile, Waverly, O.

In the shoot-off Maust shattered 150 consecutive targets. Troch placed second, Boile, third, and Slaughter fourth.

Rufus King, Wichita Falls, Tex., 15-year-old Grand American trapshooting champion, placed third in the junior event when a fellow Texan, 16-year-old Toke Parks of Houston, captured the junior title in a shoot-off with Ned Lilly of Stanton, Mich. Parks cracked 99 out of 100 targets and King 97. King was on crutches this year because of a broken right foot.

HATCHET ATTACKER SLAIN BY POLICEMAN

Chicago.—(AP)—A man believed to be H. B. Young, Frank Park rail road clerk, was killed by a policeman whom he attacked with a hatchet after a five mile chase through city streets this morning.

The man's automobile ran into a crowd of people waiting for a street car on the west side and Policemen Fred Korde and Frank Stankovitz pursued him. After they forced him to the curb the man attacked them screaming and brandishing his hatchet. Korde shot him through the heart. Cards in the victim's pockets bore the name of Young.

South Watches Louisiana's Effort To Meet Cotton Crisis

OTHER PLANS ALSO WINNING CAREFUL STUDY

Governor Long, "No Cotton" Sponsor Predicts Passage by Assembly

Atlanta, Ga. (AP)—The south today watched the Louisiana legislature's consideration of a cotton growing prohibition plan for 1932 with varied reaction. The plan, which would prohibit the planting of cotton in the state, was being considered by the legislature in the face of the economic crisis brought about by the cotton surplus and market slump.

Meanwhile, Gov. Huey P. Long, sponsor of the "no cotton" plan, predicted its passage by the Louisiana assembly he called into session for that purpose, and ultimate acceptance by the majority of other cotton states. Favorable action by states with three-fourths of the cotton acreage would be required to validate the plan.

In Texas, largest of the cotton growing states, Gov. Ross Sterling said the legislature would not be asked to pass the "no cotton" plan but that a measure for acreage reduction would be considered. He had not decided whether to call a special session of legislature.

Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina, commented unfavorably on the Long plan and suggested President Hoover call an immediate session of congress to consider the cotton crisis.

South Carolina's governor, I. C. Blackwood, said he might ask cotton planters to meet in their county seats Saturday to consider the cotton growing holiday and suggested the plan was "the greatest opportunity of the century for farmers."

Governor Doyle Carlton of Florida said he would not call a special session of legislature on the Long plan. Gov. Richard B. Russell, Jr., of Georgia, made a similar announcement but the commissioner of agriculture, Eugene Talmadge, continued a drive among farmers for acreage reduction, discussing with them also the Long prohibition plan.

Mississippi farmers, many reported in favor of the prohibition plan, were generally awaiting action of the Louisiana legislature. Governor E. B. Bibb has suggested, instead that every third row of the 1931 crop be left in the fields.

PLAN JOBLESS RELIEF FOR WINTER MONTHS

New York (AP)—Harvey D. Gibson, banker has been named chairman of a citizens' committee to arrange for relief of jobless during the winter. Twenty-five industrialists and financiers met at the office of J. P. Morgan and company yesterday and pledged themselves to raise a fund of more than $8,000,000 to provide work for the idle along lines to be determined.

Mr. Gibson is president of the Manufacturers Trust company. He was a Red Cross executive in wartime.

The board of estimate and apportionment at an executive meeting discussed the possibilities of appropriating $20,000,000 for winter relief.

The New York Hotel Men's association has offered to aid, by establishing kitchens. The plan calls for the donation of stews and soups by hotels to distributing agencies.

Half of the house has been replaced with new seats and the front of the theatre has been painted and newly decorated. The theatre installed a Western Electric sound equipment in place of the old equipment which had been used for two and a half years.

PERMISSION GRANTED TO BUILD ADDITION

The request of Mrs. Minnie Klopfel, 614 W. Lawrence-st., to build an addition to her home, which is in the fire limits, was granted by the board of building inspection at a meeting at city hall Wednesday morning. The board decided the location of the house precluded any fire hazards.

PRIDE GOETH BEFORE CONVICT'S RETURN TO JOLIET PRISON

Joliet, Ill. (AP)—Arthur Miller was clever enough to diet himself into the golf togs of the warden's son and walk out of the prison July 4 but pride in the achievement brought him back today.

He found the plus fours, and the clubs, in the warden's office in May but his birth was too great to wear them in comfort.

For two months he went on a diet that mystified the guards, on the morning of the fourth he tried the clothes again and the fit was perfect. Nonchalantly he strolled through the prison yards swinging a midiron at flowers and his accuracy impressed the guards. As he walked through the gates his parting salute was a story of a birdie on No. 2.

After a holiday at Davenport, Ia., his home, he decided to visit Chicago and "borrowed" an automobile in Rock Island, Ill., he said. A minor accident in Rochelle, Ill., led to his arrest under the alias of Arthur Morris.

In jail there he bragged about the golf to escape to a fellow prisoner who notified the sheriff. Fingerprints were checked with Joliet and found to correspond with Miller's.

He was brought to the penitentiary from Dixon, Ill., today.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

PLANES STILL STRUGGLE FOR LEAD IN DERBY

Identity of Race Leader Is Not Officially Known Yet

El Paso, Tex. (AP)—Surviving entrants in the National Air Derby from Santa Monica, Calif., to Cleveland struggled for additional points today with the identity of the race leader still undetermined officially. Standings at El Paso, the fifth control point, however, placed Lee Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Calif., blazed the way into El Paso, head of the men's division and Clema Granger of Santa Monica as leader of the women.

With three planes eliminated on the flight from Tucson, Ariz., to this city yesterday, officials announced the results this morning after hours of work with handicap statistics. Figures for the general handicap, in which both men and women are entered, were not revealed.

The plane of Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kas., was demolished by a crash in a canyon east of Douglas, Ariz. Rowland blamed motor trouble. He and Mrs. Rowland, who accompanied him on the flight, were not injured.

Motor trouble led Barney Rawson of Cleveland to land eight miles west of El Paso, Mrs. Blanche Noyes of Cleveland turned back at Tucson when the magneto of her motor failed. Fifty-two other planes arrived here safely.

landing at 3:15 P. M. M. S. T., 15 minutes ahead of Phoebe Omlie of Memphis, Tenn. W. Musgrove of San Francisco, was the first masculine flier to land here, setting his plane down at 3:50 p. m.

Rankings for the men's race placed Eldon Cessna of Wichita, Kas., second and D. C. Warren of Alameda, Calif., third. They were followed in order by Roy Hunt of Santa Monica and Charles Goldtrap of Phoenix, Ariz.

Phoebe Omlie was ranged second in the women's division and Miss O'Donnell, whose fast plane has consistently led the group, third. May Talcip of St. Louis was placed

WILL INTRODUCE BILL TO BRING BACK BEER

Burlingame, Calif. (AP)—Representative Melvin J. Maas, of St. Paul, Minn., said today a bill would be introduced before the next congress authorizing the manufacture and sale of beer at its pre-war alcoholic content.

"Legalizing such action," he said, "is the logical step toward ending the reign of terror from which the country is suffering at the hands of gangsters."

Beer and wine must come first, and later congress can deal with the liquor problem. Other countries have done it and added to their revenue thereby.

"If the manufacture and sale of beer were legalized, it would put at least 500,000 men to work, would enable farmers to dispose of their surplus grain and would do much to end the bootlegging evil. The way to put the bootlegger out of business is to compete with him."

Maas, who described himself as a "dry" in that he does not drink, is visiting a brother here.

FALL OF LABOR CABINET TO AID MONEY MARKETS

Clearing of Foreign Situations to Assist Return to Normalcy

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1931 by David Lawrence
Washington—For several months now the "foreign situation" has been hanging over the banking and credit elements of the United States, retarding what has confidently been hoped would bring a normal condition to the domestic money market.

With the fall of the Labor ministry of Great Britain, the second stage in the clearing up of the foreign dilemma has been reached. The first, of course, was the crisis in Germany. Domestic politics played a part in the situation both in Berlin and London. Reluctance to use the taxing power on the one hand and a tendency to grow extravagant in the use of government funds on the other hand may be regarded as the principal factors.

Great Britain through her government has tenaciously hung to the "dole" as a means of handling the unemployment problem. Governmental economy and a balanced budget has been put off so long that it has finally affected the credit of the Bank of England abroad. Ramsey MacDonald would have liked to have suggested some plan to tax the wealthy and keep up the payments to the unemployed, but time and the critical developments of the last 10 days defeated him. It was a condition so acute that immediate action was essential.

Bankers Dictated

Published reports from abroad state that American bankers in effect dictated the fall of the MacDonald ministry because, it was said, the federal reserve banks through their New York spokesman refused to extend any more credit unless the British budget were balanced or measures taken to bring about a balance between expenditures and receipts. The American government, of course, has no connection with the credits extended by the federal reserve banks or the conditions attached to them, since the member banks are all private.

It is considered doubtful that the Federal Reserve Bank of New York made any stipulation concerning British policy, but there is precedent for assuming that credit cannot be extended where world confidence is shaken. Thus American and British and French bankers told the German reich only this summer that economy measures would have to be put in effect if foreign credits were to be renewed. It is a thin line of demarcation nowadays between friction in domestic policies and advice as to how a government can obtain credit and confidence outside its borders, where foreign investors insist upon knowing the character of the government that is to repay the loans.

There is no doubt that British bankers themselves are in accord with the suggestions of foreign bankers and it would not be surprising if the true British situation were exaggerated in order to bring about the fall of the Labor ministry. See Good Effect

No matter, however, what the events were that led up to the formation of a coalition government in Great Britain, the belief prevails that a forward step has been taken and that the British pound sterling now will be stabilized in its foreign exchange because of the return of confidence on the part of the world generally in the ability of the new British government to put its financial structure in order.

It has been disconcerting, of course, to see the Bank of England struggling with a decline in pound sterling, but the banking world has never lost confidence in the British nor in the ability of a new cabinet to straighten out the domestic difficulties. Some new economic experiments may be tried, such as the imposition of a new tariff for revenue only, but the British crisis may be said to have been passed with a decisive step taken to rid England of a policy of continued expenditure without adequate revenues raised by taxation or import duties.

SENATOR RETURNS FROM ORIENT TRIP

San Francisco—(AP)—Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, advocate of independence for the Philippines, has returned to the United States after several weeks of study in the Orient.

"The American people and the American newspapers are entitled to have the truth about the Philippines," said the senator on his arrival aboard the President Grant here yesterday. "Special propaganda sent from Manila does not give the facts."

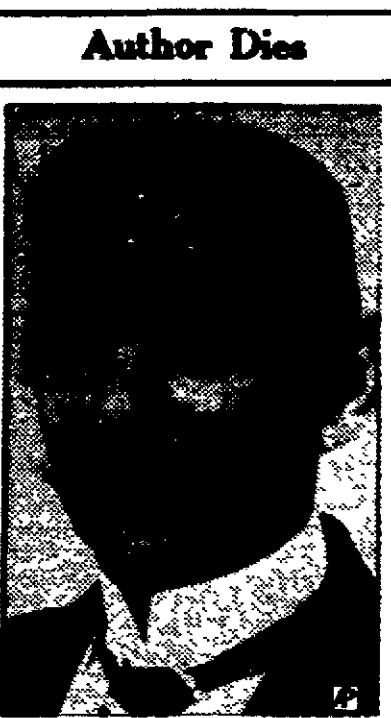

"Uncertainty has paralyzed progress in the islands. It is holding things at a standstill. All agree, both Americans and Filipinos, that congress should clarify the situation. There is only disagreement as to the matter of time."

HOLD FARM HAND AS ARSON CASE SUSPECT

Waukesha—(AP)—Named in two arson warrants, Herman Koenig, a farm hand immigrant, was a prisoner in the Waukesha jail today. The warrants accuse him of setting a $5,000 fire on the farm of Henry Esser and a $20,000 fire on the farm of Nick Lauer, both in the Town of Menomonee, last week. William Greenwald, deputy state fire marshal, said he would ask a mental examination of Koenig.

MAN FATALLY INJURED WHEN SCAFFOLD FALLS

Milwaukee—(AP)—Arthur Gesfeldt, 52, injured with three others when a scaffold inside the partly completed State Teachers' College field house collapsed, died at a hospital here late yesterday. Although Paul Sadowski, 31, was reported in a serious condition with a possible skull fracture, he and the other two men were expected to recover.

New York—(AP)—Simon and Schuster, publishers, received a cable from Nice, France, today announcing the death of Frank Harris, noted author. The cable was from Mrs. Nellie Harris and merely said that Harris had died in his sleep.

Harris was 75 years old. He has been living in France since 1922 when he sold his interest in Pearson's magazine, of which he was editor.

The "Life of Oscar Wilde" is probably Harris' best known work. A later work "My Life and Loves" attracted more attention, however, being banned in many countries, including the United States.

4-H CLUB WORKERS GO TO STATE FAIR

Two Demonstration Teams Will Compete at Milwaukee Next Week

Outagamie-co boys and girls who will attend the state fair at Milwaukee next week as a reward for accomplishments in 4-H club work will leave Saturday, according to Miss Harriet Thompson, county club leader. They will spend the fair period at the state 4-H camp.

Appleton chamber of commerce is paying the expenses of the girls entered in the style show, the boys entered in the showmanship contest, and the dairy demonstration team.

The Soo Line railroad is making it possible for another girl to attend who qualified by being especially interested in club work.

She is Miss Ethel Meidam, Greenville, who was named for the honor because of her work in 4-H club activities and because she was considered most deserving.

Miss Marjorie Stritzel, Seymour, is entered in the style show; Virginia Burns and Lucille Gabriel both of Hortonville, comprise the salad making demonstration team; and Marion Town and Eileen Kluge, also of Hortonville, winners of county honors at Seymour fair, will demonstrate dairy products. The girls will be chaperoned by Mrs. Steve Otis of Hortonville.

Emil Mueller of Deer Creek is entered in the showmanship contest, while Ervin Handschke and Hugo Dobbereinstein of Greenville will form

CITY SWELTERS IN SEVERE HEAT WAVE

One Man Drowns in Los Angeles as "Rip Tide" Visits Coast

Los Angeles—(AP)—The weather bureau today forecast a continuation of high temperatures which visited Los Angeles and vicinity yesterday and surf bathing as a means of avoiding the heat was made unattractive to many because of the possibility of the recurrence of dangerous "rip tides."

The temperature was 97 degrees here yesterday, the hottest August day in five years. This freakish twist of the weather followed the hottest July recorded for Los Angeles. Although extreme southern California and parts of Arizona had temperatures 100 and above, which is not unusual for the desert area, other sections of the country—Chicago, New York, Kansas City, New Orleans, San Francisco—reported comparatively mild temperatures.

The return of heat to the Los Angeles area, sending thousands of persons to the ocean, saw the recurrence of a rip tide similar to that of last July 4, which claimed 21 lives along the southern California coast.

However, only one drowning had been attributed to the new tide—a combination of vicious cross currents. Forty-eight persons were rescued by life guards in the Long Beach area. The victim was David Chesney, 25, of Downey, Calif.

Warnings were broadcast to bathers in all beach towns through life saving crews.

Yesterday's temperature here was 15 degrees above normal maximum for Aug. 25, and has been exceeded in recent years only by the 88 degree mark of July 14, 1930.

Miss Harriet Thompson, county club leader and Gustav Sell, county agent, plan to attend several fair sessions.

Forest Protection Chief Conservation Task, Rotarians Learn

FISHERIES AND RESERVES NEED AREAS OF WOODS

Reforestation Is Cooperative Venture, D. H. Kipp Declares

Protection of forests is the outstanding conservation task facing the state, D. H. Kipp, superintendent of education and publications of the state conservation commission, told the Rotary club at its weekly meeting at Hotel Northern Tuesday noon. Pointing out that state fisheries, game reserves and state nurseries all depend on forests for their existence, he said that forestry is the basis for all conservation.

"Reforestation is a co-operative venture between the state which must bear most of the burden, the federal government, which points the way through the existence of the national parks, and the county, the government unit most closely connected with the land situation and adequate finances," Mr. Kipp said.

He commended the establishment of county forests and parks in Wisconsin and pointed out that in this state tax delinquent lands revert to the county rather than the state. However, the reforestation enterprise in counties has been handicapped by unfair levy of taxation, according to Mr. Kipp. He explained the system of taxation up to the time of the forest crop tax law in 1927, which taxed the value of the land plus the value of the timber even after the timber had been cut. In 1927 the new crop tax law taxed the timber but once as a crop.

Lack of Rangers

Mr. Kipp deplored the lack of rangers and equipment to protect the 11 forest districts in the state. At the present time there are 11 men on the payroll as district rangers in charge of the large forest districts. He explained the difficulty of fighting a fire in district six, where 1,620 acres extend 150 miles from Ashland to Medford, where the only motor equipment is a one-ton truck and two smaller trucks.

Under the new forestry organization in the state forest districts will be made up of 12 units instead of 11, and additional motors, hose and pumps will be added to the equipment for fire fighting. Under the civil service examinations in Madison a week ago, men will be chosen for rangers of each district with two or three assistant rangers under them.

The system of emergency fire fighting is unsatisfactory, according to Mr. Kipp, who said that the only way in which to relieve this situation is to have more trained men in the forestry work.

"We don't want men to fight fires," Mr. Kipp said. "When the pay of the firefighters decreases, there is an accompanying decrease of fire throughout the state."

Explains Lower Pay

He explained that fire increases are not of an incendiary origin but that firefighters tending to their jobs last as long as possible when a fire is found. He said that one of the direct causes of numerous fires during this time of depression is that more people are in the woods which increases the fire hazard tremendously. Another reason for numerous fires this season is the extreme drought, which is so noticeable in the wooded sections that firefighters are keeping fires out of swamps, heretofore used to put out fires. The swamps are extremely dry this summer he said and only add to any fire with the dry peat and underbrush.

Reviews Forest Work

Mr. Kipp gave a brief background of forestry work in Wisconsin, stating that Wisconsin started forestry work about the same time as other states did, too late after logging companies had stripped the woods. He explained that the first so-called forestry officials were men appointed solely for the purpose of preventing the theft of the pine timber. It was not until 1911, he pointed out, that the state began its first state park movement. The general purpose of the state timber was to resell it to lumber companies, as evidenced by the sale of 50,000 acres of land in 1897 to a lumber company, the same land which Wisconsin later bought back at an exorbitant sum for the present state park. The forestry movement was crippled in 1915 when state legislation provided that state money could not be reverted to reforestation. The first forestry appropriation that provided for the use of taxpayers' money for forestry work was passed in 1929 at which time the 11 forest districts were organized. The amount appropriated for forestry work to include fire fighting, surveying, improvement, soil surveys, economic planting as well as land purchase was sadly inadequate according to Mr. Kipp. He said that this year is the first time in forestry history in Wisconsin that the state can plan a larger and thoughtful forestry program.

RETURNS TO DUTIES

GOING TO FUNERAL

Mr. Marston, who for many years represented the Wisconsin Police Journal, and is well known to all police officials in the state, was killed in an accident Monday.

Although the beautiful home pictured above is expected to be the center of litigation in the divorce battle between Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor, both have deserted it to make public appearances. ## Lindbergh Forecasts Air Line Over Pacific Ocean

Tokio—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, in an interview here today expressed the opinion that an air line across the Pacific is a possibility of the future.

"But," said the colonel, "the scheme would require much more study. It is entirely feasible provided traffic demands justify it. The route, I should say, would be further south than the one we followed."

The interview was carried on in English.

Japanese reporters asked the Lindberghs about their baby, about how they liked Japanese food and clothing and what they wanted to see here. Lindbergh answered smilingly and briefly. He said, their plans were indefinite as to where they would go after visiting China. He emphasized the trip was "purely a vacation," and that they were "looking forward to many pleasant days in Japan."

Asked if they were in any great danger while aloft in their plane off Kotel Island, where they spent two nights and a day on the water because of fog and motor trouble, Lindbergh answered "personally, no" but explained the plane had been in danger because its anchor rope had been cut by jagged rocks.

"The colonel took occasion to pay tribute to Captain Saburo Takagi, commander of the government steamship Shimane Maru, which towed their plane from a dangerous anchorage at Kotel and later to Muroto bay, 15 miles distant.

"Captain Takagi," said Lindbergh, "appeared on the scene at just the right moment to assist us."

Finally Mrs. Lindbergh turned to her husband and whispered: "I'm terribly tired."

The reporters, taking the hint, left the Lindberghs in a big house with seven servants, a supper for two and an understanding that there would be no more callers and nothing to do but rest until tomorrow.

FARMERS NEED NOT FEAR CORN BORER

Insect Probably Has Ended Travels for This Season, Sell Says

Corn borers probably have moved as far as they will this season and Outagamie-co farmers need not fear an invasion by the pest, Gus E. Sell, said today. Reports that the borer has invaded Manitowish and Sheboygan-co should cause farmers here no worry, he added.

There have been no indications of the pest in this county, it is said, and because the season is well along, and many farmers are cutting corn and placing it in silos there is little chance the borer will cause any further trouble.

Placing of corn in silos will kill borers in corn now cut, according to the county agent. If farmers plow their fields this fall and bury the stalks they will kill whatever eggs or borers are on the stalks.

Discovery of two infestations along the shores of Lake Michigan last week in Sheboygan and Manitowish counties has been reported by state authorities. It is believed the borers were brought across Lake Michigan in a shipment of corn. About 200 acres of corn surrounding the infested area have been cleared to prevent spread of the insect in that vicinity.

"Recent cool nights and heavy dew will help the cabbage crop," the county agent said. "The condition resulting from cool nights gives the cabbage moisture it is denied by lack of rain."

NOT EVEN CORN THAT IS BOILED WILL GET BY U. S. INSPECTORS

Menominee, Mich.—(AP)—Corn, boiled or raw, doesn't get by the United States Department of Agriculture inspection patrol now on duty here.

Notwithstanding the disappointment of Mayor Edward Daniel of Menominee the inspectors demonstrated to that official yesterday that orders, incident to corn borer infestation, are strictly enforced.

The mayor was deprived of a place of "boiled" corn which he attempted to carry across the Menominee river in his lunch basket.

TRI-PARTY BODY TRIES TO SOLVE BUDGET PUZZLE

jects for improvements and maintenance would be curtailed.

After economies have been effected, there remains new revenue to be found. While definite proposals will be kept secret until Chancellor Snowden delivers his second budget of the year to the house of commons, it is generally believed that as a counter-balance to sacrifices on the part of the workless and of the state employees, the wealthier classes will have their income tax levy increased.

New luxury taxes also are expected, with a possible increase of taxes on spirits, beer and tobacco.

Opposition Expected

On the other hand there may be some opposition from the government's own supporters, for although the general principles of the economy proposals find favor among the Liberals and Conservatives, each party has its traditional policies. The Liberals, for example, are not likely to welcome educational reductions and many Conservatives are expected to object to heavier direct taxes.

It may be possible to force the two principal bills, an economy bill and the finance bill, through parliament in a month, but it is generally expected the emergency government will last at least until Christmas and perhaps may hang on until it can engineer a budget which would avoid any possible deficit in the fiscal year 1932-33.

Another proposal which is not taken seriously would turn the national government into a real dictatorship. Under this scheme the cabinet would ask parliament for wide powers to effect economies by orders in council which would not require parliamentary ratification.

This method, while it might be possible as a last resort if the Labor opposition should assume unexpected strength, would be unpopular with the leaders of all parties and only the most urgent national crisis would be likely to cause the cabinet to employ it.

VARIED PROGRAM FOR DE PERE FAIR

Annual Northeastern Wisconsin Fair Opens Next Saturday

Only a few days more and the people of northeastern Wisconsin will be in the midst of their annual fair which opens Saturday on the fair grounds between Green Bay and De Pere. Exhibits have been entered by hundreds of persons from Brown and surrounding counties in the competition for cash and ribbon prizes.

Fair officials have booked the S. W. Brundage Co. a carnival. Horse races will take place next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with horses competing from all parts of the middle west and Canada. The feature attraction of the Sunday afternoon program will be the auto races, climaxing in a head-on collision of two automobiles.

The vaudeville program will be presented on the platform Sunday. Schooley's Sensations of 1931, a revue of dancing girls, also will be shown Sunday night. The revue will be given every night during the fair.

Monday will be children's day at the fair, and youngsters will be admitted free. Tuesday will be Green Bay day, and Wednesday De Pere day. Chicago, Northwestern railway has announced reduced rates for round trip tickets within certain distances.

NAVAL INQUIRY IN DEATH OF WOMAN

Investigation to Be Held Aboard Airplane Carrier Lexington

San Francisco—(AP)—A naval board of inquiry was called today to investigate the death of Mrs. Daisy Price, 26, bride of Lieut. Comm. George D. Price, after police closed their investigation with the report of a coroner's jury that the woman came to her death in "a manner unknown."

Judge Advocate L. H. C. Johnson said the inquiry would be held aboard the airplane carrier U. S. S. Lexington, on which Price is an officer.

Inspector Allen McGinn, head of the San Francisco medical detail, said no further investigation would be made by police unless new evidence was uncovered.

Mrs. Price died after falling four stories to the pavement beneath a window in her apartment.

The jury's verdict came after a day's taking of testimony which was climaxed by the assertion of Price that he was certain Mrs. Price had not committed suicide, had not fallen because she became overbalanced while intoxicated, and that she "could have thrown herself from the fourth story window of her hotel to prevent someone from laying hands upon her."

Building Permits

One building permit was issued Tuesday by John M. Welland, building inspector. It was granted to William Montgomery, 606 S. Mueller-st, addition to residence, cost $500.

MRS. TYSON WINS 2ND MATCH AT GOLF MEET

Highland Park, Ill.—(AP)—Mrs. George Tyson of Kansas City kept heads up in her fight to retain her women's western golf championship at Exmoor today by defeating Ann Webster of Leavenworth, Kansas, 2 and 1 in the second round of play.

The champion was four shots over par on her journey but led all the way. She was joined in the quarter-final bracket by a dangerous rival, however, in Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, who she meets tomorrow. Mrs. Hill, 1929 champion, romped over Rena Nelson, young Chicago star, 6 and 4 today.

June Bacon of Chicago, western open champion, eliminated Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, in the hardest fought match of the day. They finished even at nine, each winning a hole but Miss Beebe shot almost par golf coming back to win.

HOPE LOCAL FUNDS TO MEET RELIEF NEEDS

Washington—(AP)—The administration hopes to be able to inform congress in December that relief funds raised locally throughout the country will be adequate to care for the unemployed during the winter months.

This was emphasized today by arrangements for completing a nationwide drive for relief funds two weeks before congress meets in regular session on Dec. 7.

President Hoover's organization on unemployment relief, headed by Walter S. Gifford, selected the period from Oct. 19 to Nov. 25, for the appeal to obtain funds through city, state and county campaigns.

CAVALRY TROOPS BACK AFTER 2-DAY MARCH

Camp Williams—(AP)—Cavalry troops E and F, Wisconsin National guard, were back in camp today after a two-day march to Mauston.

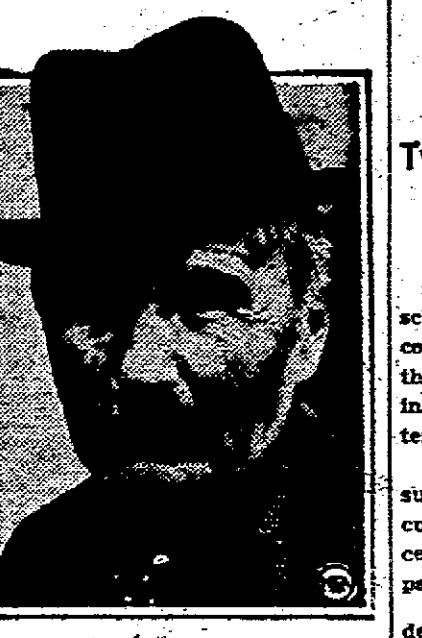

The squadron left Mauston, setting up a radio station to keep in constant communication with headquarters. Troops here today were scheduled to go through a sham battle to wind up training. Model stables pennant and the best kitchen banner was regarded as a favorite to win the $200 prize to the outfit maintaining the best camp ratings.

ASK WHEAT AND COFFEE FOR RELIEF IN DENVER

Denver, Colo.—(AP)—A request for 38 carloads of surplus wheat owned by the Federal Farm board and seven carloads of Brazilian coffee has been sent to Walter S. Gifford, chairman of President Hoover's emergency employment committee, by the Radio Prayer League of Denver, which has undertaken to feed hungry persons in Denver next winter.

The league has established a center known as General Necessity house, where it proposes to aid 10,000 persons.

Son of West

The first native son of Montana, Duncan McDonald, above, is still hale today at 82. All his life he has been a frontiersman—trapper, hunter, Indian war correspondent and interpreter. His father was the last factor of the Hudson Bay Company's fur trading posts in the west.

Two-day Meeting Starts Tomorrow at Court House

Outagamie-co rural and graded school teachers will meet at the court house tomorrow morning for the first session of the annual study institute. About 150 teachers will attend the two-day gathering.

Plans for the school year and the supervisory program will be discussed, and each teacher will receive material and reports for her particular school.

A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, will discuss the various reports and the supervisory program. W. P. Hagman, principal of the Outagamie Training school at Kaukauna will talk on Difficulties in Arithmetic and their Remedies. She remained in London three years and married Admiral Cowles, then naval attaché at the embassy there on Nov. 25, 1892.

The fight terminated suddenly with the appearance of District Attorney Frank Keefe, who lives at his summer home nearby. Keefe personally apprehended Keefe and the others tied. The men were mostly from Fond du Lac, Keefe said.

POLICE TO BEGIN DRIVE ON ARTERIAL HIGHWAY JUMPERS

Another drive on motorists who fail to come to a full stop at arterial highway signs is being planned by George T. Prim, chief of Appleton police department, he announced today. Motorists again are becoming careless, he said and are failing to stop.

POLICE WARN ABOUT SHOOTING RIFLES

Window in First Ward Home Broken Tuesday by Small Caliber Shot

"One of these days someone will be seriously injured or killed by a small caliber rifle," the chief said. "The careless persons then will be forced to stand trial and what may result no one knows. There is an ordinance prohibiting use of rifles in the city limits and anyone caught using the weapon will be dealt with accordingly."

The agents said they found 15,000 gallons of fermenting beer, 16 half barrels of beer and 220 cases of beer in a house within the city limits of Oshkosh. An elaborate brewer's outfit was discovered. Herbert M. Mollitor, at work in the place, and Fred Heinzl, who drove up in a new truck while the raid was taking place, were arrested. They posted bond of $500 each before United States Commissioner Floyd E. Jenkins here today for a hearing Sept. 7.

On a place described as the Adolph Seibold, Jr., farm, a mile west of Oshkosh, the agents found 159 gallons of alcohol and 4,000 empty tins in the barn. A boy who, agents said, was in charge, escaped arrest.

Two 1,500 gallon vats of fermenting beer were discovered on the William Budd farm about a mile from Fox River lake in Kenosha-co. The agents arrested Budd and brought him here for arraignment this afternoon.

Federal officers at Colville, Wash., said the arrest of a 15-year-old Indian Indian boy had solved at least six incendiary fires in the Colville forest this season. The boy, Alfred E. Paine, told officers he set them to see the smoke and flames. He was held under $3,000 bond.

Albany, N. Y.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic governor of New York, and Tammany Hall have reached the parting of the ways.

Dunigan and Assemblyman Irwin Steingut, Democratic leaders, said they would 'fight to the last ditch' the recommendation of Mr. Roosevelt that the Hofstadter committee investigating New York be empowered to grant immunity to witnesses.

The governor, in his message to the special session yesterday, confined his recommendations to the broadening of the power of the Hofstadter committee, thus closing the door to any effort by the Democrats to introduce bills looking toward investigations of upstate communities.

WISCONSIN MAN IS AT HEAD OF DAIRY DIVISION

John C. McDowell Set Out to Earn Funds With Which to Buy Farm

Editor's Note: This is the twelfth of a series of articles about Wisconsin people working for the government in Washington, D. C.

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — To earn enough money to buy a farm of his own in Wisconsin was the goal toward which John C. McDowell of Marquette-Soo spent years teaching and working in the summer as a hired farm hand but now that he has enough capital to begin, he likes his job as chief of the Dairy Herd Improvement investigation division of the department of agriculture too much to quit.

"I've reached the age now when most farmers retire, anyhow," says McDowell.

"Besides, I have the best job in the Department of Agriculture—not the best paying job, by any means, but still the best and the most interesting."

Recalling his early days in Wisconsin, Dr. McDowell used to tell his three children, now grown, a story that began something like this:

"When I was a little boy, less than a hundred years ago, I lived with my mother and father and my five sisters and four brothers on a farm out in central Wisconsin near to woods where the bears grow all day and all night."

"Thrilling Start
With that beginning, almost any story was thrilling, but Dr. McDowell admits he exaggerated a bit about the bears, though sometimes there would be great excitement in the community because a bear crossed someone's farm."

Growing up on a farm, McDowell nursed the idea of having a farm of his own and after finishing the school in the county, he set out to earn the necessary money for the purchase of land and equipment by teaching and hiring out as a farm hand in the summers.

He promptly discovered, however, that to make any money teaching,
he needed more education. Consequently his first teaching money was invested in paying tuition at the Wisconsin State Normal and later at the University of Wisconsin.

But after he was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, McDowell saw that he would still have to teach some more to earn enough money to go into farming in the job he wanted to farm. So he took a job at the North Dakota Agricultural College and taught there for five years, running a dairy farm on the side.

Still he didn't have enough money for the kind of dairy farm he wanted to own and when he was offered a job with the department of agriculture he took it and sold his dairy farm.

Gets First Job
McDowell's first job for Uncle Sam was as agriculturalist in farm management. With his leaning towards dairying, he shifted over to what is now the Bureau of Dairy Industry when the opportunity offered with the result that he now couldn't be persuaded to give up his work—even for a farm in Wisconsin.

In his work in connection with Dairy Herd Improvement Association, comprising 1,112 member organizations in the United States, Dr.
McDowell directs the testing of more than 500,000 cows annually for economical production of milk and butter fat. This represents approximately 2 1/2 per cent of the 20,500,000 cows in the United States.

"The half million cows on test produce 64 per cent more milk and butter fat per cow than the 20,000-000 cows not on test," says Dr. Mc-Dowell.

"This shows tremendous room for improvement in dairy herds. If all cows in this country were on test as producing as much as those now on test in our association, we could produce our present supply of dairy products with two-thirds as many cows as we now have. This would mean the elimination of 7,000,000 cows and would mean a tremendous saving in feed, labor and overhead."

"If in eliminating the 7,000,000 cows we would dispose of the lowest producers in every case, we would sell to the butchers only those cows that are producing little or no profit.

Profitable Basis
"The culling out of the low producers and feeding of the remainder according to known production would put practically all dairy farming on a profitable basis."

"One of the big objects of my work is to bring these things about."

Dr. McDowell is married and has three children. Mrs. McDowell like her husband is a native of Wisconsin and is now in Waukesha visiting her parents. One son, Robert, an out or student at Cincinnati University, is also visiting in Waukesha as is the daughter, Miss Dorothea Mc-Dowell, who is assistant Girl Reserve secretary of the Washington YMCA.
The other son, Charles, is in Washington working in a bank.

LEGGE SAYS FARMER TO RECOVER FIRST

Former Farm Board Head
Declares Rural Workers
Will Come Out All Right

Milwaukee — (P) — The farmer, Alexander Legge, former chairman of the federal farm board, said in an interview here yesterday, will be the first to recover from the business depression.

"Don't you worry about the farmer," the president of the International Harvester company said, "he'll come out all right long before the rest of us. Never so highly inflated as other industries, his business stands a much greater chance of recovering."

"I'm no more of a prophet than anyone else and there isn't a man living who can predict exactly what will happen, but I know this: I am not down in the mouth and ready to quit."

Much of the process of recovery, he said, was dependent upon developments in Europe—"get Europe straightened away, and we will cure our own ills."

He said he was of the opinion the southern farmers destroy a large part of this year's present cotton crop was a futile gesture.

"It amounts to an admission of their failure to produce in the past with a proper regard for the demand," Mr. Legge said.

He advocated planned production and marketing as the farmer's salution.

TWO GRAIN GROUPS
WILL JOIN FORCES

Fargo, N. D. — (P) — The Northwest Grain association, cooperative organization with 120 elevators, today decided to affiliate with the Farmers National Grain corporation.

As a result the elevators, in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana, will market their grain and transac-other business through the corporation recognized by the federal farm board as a grain marketing agency.

INSURANCE NEEDED BY PERSONS WITH INSURABLE RISK

Policy, After Term, Always Is Means of Providing Ready Cash

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES

Copyright, 1931, By Cons. Press

New York—There are a few other obvious things that a layman can say about life insurance besides the fact that everyone with an insurable risk needs it. For instance, no one questions the safety of life insurance. When one of the great American life insurance companies makes a contract with a policy holder that contract will be kept as far as the company is concerned. It is worth repeating this seeming truism when so many other financial institutions are doubted. After a certain time, generally three years, all policies have a loan and a surrender value.

Back in November 1929, when the stock market was crashing after the great inflation and "looked as though prices were at bargain levels, something we have now was not true, hundreds of wage earners and salaried men were eager to take advantage of what they thought was a great opportunity. They had almost no capital resources but they had their life insurance and many of them borrowed on their policies to buy stocks. It was a foolish thing to do. Not simply because it turned out wrong but because they misused the privilege and they impaired the protection to their families that is the primary object of life insurance.

However, the point here is that in the midst of the greatest panic Wall

POSTPONE MAIDEN ZEPPELIN VOYAGE

Akron, O. — (P) — Postponement of the maiden voyage of the Giant navy Zeppelin Akron until Sept. 5, or later was announced today by the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation its builders.

First tentatively scheduled for this week, the maiden flight was postponed to permit building of greater localized strength into the ship at various points.

Minor repairs were necessary following a straining of a part of the ship during overload tests of the frame work and it was found advisable to strengthen the structure at several points. When completed still more rigid tests will be applied at such points.

The ground crew's first practice session in walking the ship part way out of its hangar probably will be held tomorrow.

Street has ever seen the insured was able to borrow cash on his policy as per the agreement. Even the best of collateral is sometimes rejected by the banks when a loan is desired. It is always possible to realize on a life insurance policy. The reason that this is so is because of the unsurpassed strength of the insurance companies.

Along this same line, the writer wishes to add, and this time speaking not as a layman but as one who has had years of experience in the market place, that the investment policy of the insurance companies is guided by the best minds in the business. Bond buyers for banks are deceived row and then. Individual purchasers make plenty of mistakes, but the buyers of the great insurance companies are the most expert judges of value the bond market knows.

Sales Leadership

Four people have purchased the Buick Eight to every one buyer of any other of the thirteen eights in Buick's price range during the twelve months since its introduction.
This four-to-one preference—in days when America is scrutinizing values more closely than ever before—fully confirms the value leadership of The Eight as Buick Builds It. It is this outstanding value which causes 89 percent of all Buick owners to buy Buicks again and again.

**Buick has sold four times as many eights as the next most popular eight in its field,

JOHN CONWAY

In all communities there are a few outstanding citizens whose efforts are directly responsible for nearly every step of progress. Behind the scenes in each successive civic project this same group of citizens is found. Although they usually are the busiest persons in the community, it is to them that others turn when something must be accomplished. It is because of their ability to carry things to a conclusion that they have attained their position in the community. They are the ones who have the ability to tackle and solve new problems.

Such a man was John Conway, Jr., whose death occurred at his home here yesterday morning. But Mr. Conway, who has been actively associated with Appleton's business and civic circles for 45 years, did not limit his endeavors to this city alone. Mr. Conway's influence also was felt throughout the county, state and nation.

He, probably more than any other man, was responsible for the momentum given the good roads movement in the middle west. "The dean of good roads boosters" was the tribute paid to Mr. Conway by John T. Donaghey, maintenance engineer with the state highway department in 1923. Other members of the state highway commission spoke of him as the "father of the good roads" in Wisconsin.

The opinion recently was expressed by an Appleton attorney that the construction of improved highways in Outagamie county would have been retarded at least 10 years if it had not been for Mr. Conway's foresight and determination. Mr. Conway's interest in good roads dates back to before 1911, but it was in that year that he took his first active part in the campaign to put the road movement over in the state.

His civic activities did not stop here, however. He was one of the outstanding workers in the subscription campaign which made possible construction of St. Elizabeth hospital. Organization of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce was brought about in a large measure through his personal efforts. Although he never held any political office here, he always was actively interested in politics.

More men of this calibre are needed by every community. His death will be keenly felt, not only by Appleton, but far beyond the confines of this city.

THE COMING ISSUES

Robert W. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National committee, a veteran of many slashing political battles and thick, secret conferences, bearing all kinds of wounds and contusions but displaying no medals, has quit the long silence which enshrouded him after the Senator Norris election contest, to tell us all about the issues of the 1932 presidential campaign.

Prosperity will not be an issue, says Mr. Lucas. The reason is simple and unalloyed with sophistication. Both parties are for it. Hence how can there be any quarrel?

By the same sort of reasoning prohibition cannot be an issue because we never had it. We have merely prohibited decent legal drinks and concocted vile and illegal ones.

Yet before the polls close, if he has to wait that long, Mr. Lucas will learn that both prosperity and prohibition will have become about the liveliest sort of kicking issues the country has ever considered.

But, continues Mr. Lucas, the tariff will be an issue, the Republicans upholding the high tariff and willing even to raise it higher. There are many who would be glad to see the voters flounder in a maze of muddled and confusing figures but there are others, and many of them, who will have something to say about these issues and help to keep the people on the right track.

Mr. Lucas has overlooked an issue that should figure prominently. It was Mr. Hoover who spoke freely in 1928 concerning a matter that seems to have been made of fairylike threads, "the fairer distribution of wealth." Potent and far-reaching language that.

And because the President is a man of few words and most of those well chosen the people rightfully enough thought he was speaking of something in a concrete manner and not merely bandying with a thing called a glittering generality.

But perhaps the time is not ripe or maybe the President was merely expressing a hope.

Although, of course, the Lucases will be heard, clear and hoarse like the vibrant notes of a fog horn floating over the water, hope is undaunted in the expectation that the results of the next election may inspire a more orderly, a more sensible and a less fanatical country than we see about us.

THE LONDON CRISIS

Seventeen years ago Great Britain was face to face with the greatest of national emergencies, war.

On that occasion the Conservative leader immediately came to the support of the Liberal prime minister, and a few months thereafter a coalition cabinet in which all parties were represented was formed.

That the crisis in Great Britain today is of the utmost seriousness is indicated by the fact that a new coalition cabinet has been formed. All parties have united for the purpose of presenting a vigorous front of concord and harmony in meeting the earnest and momentous problems that confront the British people.

It must be borne in mind that the budget of Great Britain now exceeds $4,000,000,000. In other words, England, Scotland, Wales and North Ireland, with a population less than 40 per cent of this country, must nevertheless raise as much money annually in order to pay its way.

This has involved in itself a terrible strain, although the immediate emergency, a shortage of income over expenditures estimated at about $600,000,000 for the year, is clearly attributable to the changes taken by Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer.

At the beginning of the year Snowden calculated that there would be a deficit. Obviously there is but one of two things to do facing such a situation.

Income must be increased or expenses must be cut.

A national budget is just plain arithmetic. And a national bankruptcy is no different in principle than one affecting the neighborhood grocer who does not and cannot get enough money rolling into his treasury to pay for his goods and expenses.

Instead of taking one of the two plain paths, Snowden "played for time." Thus does hope of some lucky chance even lead governments astray.

And playing for time, and living on hope, and failing to face the stern realities of life, all accentuated by an increasingly worse condition of affairs in the world, brought Great Britain almost to its knees.

The traditional care and sound sense of the British people has been shown in by-elections since Snowden elected to "play for time," with the voters swinging strongly against the Liberals and Laborites and over to the Conservatives because the former were taking chances with the safety of the public ship.

But a coalition government under the circumstances is a splendid omen. It means all hands to the pumps and everyone pull together until a haven is reached.

Opinions Of Others

THE ROLLING SNOWBALL
The charity snowball that Detroit started rolling with easy welfare spending has begun to grow in size and increase in momentum, and the city administration does not know how to stop it.

With $20,000,000 already spent and the city forced to negotiate with Mr. Ford for a $5,000,000 loan, the demand is now made by a group of the beneficiaries of the $20,000,000 for a welfare fund of $100,000,000.

Whatever political plums may have been growing on the welfare tree, if political plums were sought, seem to have been shaken off by the vigor of the new demands. Those who now want one hundred millions are the same ones who have been receiving part of the $20,000,000 dote and have also been getting free lodging from the city. They have turned on their benefactors with disconcerting suddenness.

It's an old story. Politically controlled charity, coupled with indiscriminate spending, has decried every community that has tried it. The snowball grows and grows, rushing down the hill to bankruptcy. The more that is given, the more is demanded. The appetite increases and never finds satisfaction.

Detroit has forsaken the principles of democracy and is learning the consequences. Both the treasury and the electorate are being undermined, morally as well as financially.—The Battle Creek Enquirer-News.

FROM Prime Minister to Prime Minister in twenty minutes" . . . that's the kind of book Ramsay MacDonald's going to write . . . but give the British credit . . . Mac may be giving up all chances of a political future—for he had to throw his party over to help the country . . . and in the meantime, Stanley Baldwin sacrificed his chances of becoming prime minister by recommending Mac . . . and all the political parties are trying to work together to get some place . . . could that happen in America? . . . nope . . . in a similar situation, the politicians would spend so much time scrapping and trying to salvage something out of the affair for themselves, that the crisis would have passed before they did anything about it . . .

For instance, in Detroit, when the city spent uncounted millions in a year for poor relief and found out that the treasury was empty, did the poor get all the uncounted millions? They did not. Politicians, grafters and such reached in and filled up before the jobless were helped along.

And Funny

No, Tillie, these new hats are not Eugene, they're Eugene. It doesn't make much difference, not since seeing a very, very rotund lady barging along the street in one of them, looking much like a whaling ship under full sail.

And the birds are certainly taking a beating this year—what with the plumes.

This Cumberland bank robbery looks like a family affair—the president's name is Miller, the vice president's name is Miller, so is the cashier's and so is the assistant cashier and another assistant cashier.

And a bank in a small town near Chicago has adopted a "speakeasy" system to avoid holdups. Sure—a peephole with a reinforced door and a buzzer. From now on, residents sneak up to the door, push the buzzer and whisper hoarsely—"Gotta good batch of new tires?" . . . or "Gimme a shot of ten dollar bills."

A well known Appleton business man was in the office Monday. He picked up a copy of the P and C.

"What's this," he remarked, "Lois Chaney's dead?"

"Sure," we said, "and—uh—"

"And what's this Tuesday paper doing out today?"

"That is a Tuesday paper," we answered weakly, "Tuesday of a year ago."

The Lindberghs are still on their vacation. But their idea of a vacation is to us something like writing twenty columns a day.

Incidentally, Mrs. Lindbergh has been termed a good "hem." Which is not an insult. It's the term used by wireless operators to describe an amateur.

PATIENCE

The patient man who stands to care
And shrugs his shoulders now and then
At little hurts he has to bear
Outdistances the fretful men.

The patient man who bit by bit
Some trying, tedious task completes,
Conquers where fretful men admit
The pain required their skill defeats.

The price of many goals is time,
Plus willingness to work and wait.
Though courage oft is called sublime,
One must have patience to be great.

Steadfast of purpose he must be,
Who would some worth while goal attain.
When fretful men disheartened flee,
The man of patience dares again.

Too Much Banana Oil on Troubled Waters!

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

A MOST PAINFUL AILMENT

In winter time we often see or experience a condition known as "chapped hands" and this consists in a cracking of the skin, says Dr. J. F. Montague, in his excellent little book "Troubles We Don't Talk About" (Lippincott Co.) You are all aware of the soreness, smarting and itching which accompanies this condition.

Then, too, we are all familiar with a condition known as a "cracked lip." This is also an extremely troublesome condition, difficult to heal and in general a disturbing factor out of proportion to its size. A very similar condition of the rectal orifice is called fissure. It is really unimportant from the standpoint of doing great harm or endangering life, but in producing agony it ranks with the worst ailments.

Fissure causes pain of a knife-like character, much more severe than the pain of mere piles.

In a talk about hemorrhoids the other day I said I believe the constipation and the fissure habit usually precedes the hemorrhoids. In the case of fissure I admit the constipation follows the fissure. The discomfort produced by any bowel movement is so extreme that the victim purposely avoids the act as long as it is humanly possible. Then the anxiety and demoralization the condition causes contribute further to upset digestion, and so not a few cases of "stomach trouble" are to be cured only by curing an old fissure.

If it will not seem cruel I will give not my own opinion, but that of Dr. Montague, that the chief cause of fissure is constipation. Yes, yes, we just explained that fissure causes constipation. We doctors must have our little jokes—I hope you won't mind as long as our jokes are clean. When I mentioned above that constipation is an inevitable effect of fissure, I remembered the story about the bartender who cured all bad coughs with a huge dose of mineral water. Fissure causes constipation in much the same way. Presumably there is primarily a small tear produced by some hard mass, or by the careless use of a syringe.

Reflex irritability of the bladder often leads to a mistaken diagnosis of "cystitis" or, among very ignorant folk, "cold in the bladder." In some instances fissure has been mistaken for "sciacia" or just "back-ache."

Here let me warn readers not to ask my opinion about a given case. No doctor's opinion is worth a hoot unless he has made a careful examination.

Suppositories and external salves are worthless. Sometimes, of course, applied thru a pile pipe by the physician or as instructed by the physician, may give some relief. One of the best measures of relief is the hot sitz bath, as hot as the patient can comfortably bear, well over the hips, for half an hour, and the effect may be enhanced by the application of hot water bag or heating pad following the bath.

Surgical treatment is the sensible thing, when fissure causes much suffering. In most cases the surgical cure is given with local anesthesia, and the discomfort for a day or two after the local operation is nothing compared with the pain suffered from the fissure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Doctors Are Mutilated

Please recommend some doctor in . . . who will give the insulin treatment to help an undernourished patient gain weight. All the doctors I have called on refuse absolutely . . . (Mrs. O. E. N.)

Answer—Any competent physician abreast of the progress of his profession will give such treatment in suitable cases. Perhaps the doctors found your condition unsuitable. Have you tried the yeast treatment? That often helps to build up the weight. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for gaining weight.

Why Prescribe Alcohol?
Why do doctors, knowing whiskey is harmful to the body, prescribe it for their patients? (C. C.)

Answer—They don't. If they know it is harmful. Alcohol, liquors or beverages may be harmful as beverages, but that has nothing to do with the therapeutic or medicinal use of alcohol, which is not a beverage but the doctors in charge of the patient. When a doctor wishes to give his patient the therapeutic effect of alcohol he doesn't have to prescribe booze, you know.

Ooh, Lead Me to It

Is it injurious for any one, particularly a young child, to drink fresh milk from Tuberculin tested cows while it still retains its animal heat? (W. J. E.)

Answer—I should say such a child is fortunate. Of course such milk may be contaminated by handlers who have communicable disease. But if one can take delivery at cowside, so to speak, and the milk is a healthy, cleanly individual, wow, wow, what a tantalizing picture. And that aroma of fresh milk foaming in the pail! Get along with you and let me finish my work.

A Pair of Bunions

Kindly print your treatment for bunions. When I read it I didn't suppose I'd ever have one, and now I have two. (M. N.)

Answer—For one bunion two weeks in hospital and a nice little operation. For a pair, no more time, but of course a moderate increase in the price. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instruction for the Care of the Feet. Ask for yourself—if you try to make a clipping do it I'll not heed it. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

WHILE all the Tinties took their rest, folks sauntered by, all queerly dressed. A little youngster stopped and said, "Hello, there, Tinymites! Five read about you with me. I'd like if you'd play with me a bit before you all start out to see this city's sights."

The Travel Man broke in and said, "That's nice of you, young curly head, but we are all quite hungry. We must find a place to dine. If you will lead us to a spot where we can find food, rice and hot, we'll gladly let you join us."

And the youngster said, "That's fine."

He took them to a fine cafe and Clowdy said, "This is the way I like to eat, with good food served. I know I'll down my share." Then everybody ate and ate. They all agreed the food was great. The Travel Man said, "When you're through, we'll walk out in the air."

For 'bout an hour the whole bunch stayed. Their boy friend then said, "A parade is going to pass right by here. You can see it, if you like. We have fine celebrations here, with pretty floats to bring good cheer. You all can join the marchers. If you're not too tired to hike."

"Oh, gee, I have a better plan," we Clowdy shouted. "If we can, we'll ride upon a great big float. Then we don't get tired out." Just then the parade began to pass and Clowdy even left his glass of milk upon the table. Soon they began to shout.

The Travel Man arranged so they could join the parade that very day.

"Big float" came up near them. "On board!" he loudly cried. The Tinties did, quite gingerly and they were happy as could be. Said Clowdy, "Gee, I feel real proud upon this sort of ride."

A Bystander

In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—There may be more than first appears in the threat of blind Senator Schall of Minnesota to demand a congressional investigation of the manner in which the department of justice handled the case of Al Capone.

Schall hints of an "arrangement for leniency" in the sentence of the Chicago gangster. "Almost unbelievable" if true, he says.

The senator and Attorney General Mitchell are from the same state. Last January they became involved in a bitter feud over the appointment of a federal judge in Minnesota.

Mitchell refused to endorse Schall's man for the post. It irked the blind senator, especially the attorney general's statement that he didn't believe the people of Minnesota wanted "men appointed to pay political debts."

Schall hit back with the remark that Mitchell showed "less than good taste" in some of his assertions.

A Feud Renewed?

Schall's nominee was not appointed. Instead the President sent to the senate the name of a man the senator characterized as being especially undesirable to him. He termed the appointment a studied affront to him on the part of the attorney general.

Is it possible that Schall's interest in having the department of justice investigated is a renewal of his feud with Mitchell?

It is true that Mitchell's name is mentioned around Washington in gossip concerning who would fill a vacancy on the supreme court which were it to occur in the Hoover administration. The attorney general is a democrat in a republican cabinet.

Should President Hoover be called on to appoint a new supreme court judge, Mitchell might fit in nicely.

Even before he entered the President's cabinet, as solicitor general he gained the high esteem of members of the supreme bench. On 34 occasions he contended before the highest tribunal that the lower courts had ruled wrongly. In 33 instances he was upheld.

Contrasts

Should Hoover have occasion and give Mitchell such an appointment, he would have to be confirmed by the senate. There, undoubtedly a thorn in his side, would be Schall.

The two principals in the controversy offer a wide contrast in personalities.

Mitchell is a slender man, who cracks par on the golf course, is an expert photographer, hunter and fisherman.

Schall is short and fiery. Bereft of his sight since early manhood due to an electric shock, he depends on his trained police dogs and senate pages to direct him through the street and the capital and to and from his office on the hill.

JAPS HONOR WASHINGTON

On Aug. 26, 1917, Viscount Kikuta Iishi, leading the Imperial Japanese Mission, visited Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon, delivered a brief tribute in flawless English, and placed a wreath upon the tomb from the Japanese people. He said:

"Washington was an American, but America grew as she is powerful as she is, certain as she is of her splendid destiny, can lay no exclusive claim to this immortal name. Washington is now a citizen of the world; today he belongs to all mankind."

"Japan is proud to place herself beside her noble allies in this high resolve, and here, in the presence of these deathless ashes, she affirms her devotion to the cause and the principles for which they wage battle, fully determined to do her whole part in securing for the world the blessings of liberty, justice and lasting peace."

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—The alacrity with which Henry L. Mencken answers letters, personal and business long has been a marvel to those who know what a busy man he is.

This prolific and profound commentator, who commutes twice a month between his home town, Baltimore, and New York to look to the editing of his magazine, has, in addition, for almost a year now, met the demands of a charming roommate upon his time.

And even the boos and the Babbits write in to denounce him.

Moreover, his correspondence with persons in foreign lands is weekly.

Yet if you, friend or foe, give an indication in your communication to him that you are half way round in mind, you may expect Mencken to have an answer in the return mail—if it is humanly possible for him to do so.

Mencken Wrote This
Can you tell me how you do it? I appealed. "I mean, how you find time to respond to letters with such dispatch."

My letter followed him from Baltimore back to New York. He was stopping in his Fifth avenue office long enough to arrange matters for a visit to Philadelphia, for a day or two.

He let his beer go flat, while he plumped himself down before his typewriter to pound out:

"I answer letters promptly simply as a matter of self-defense. "My mail is so large that if I let it accumulate for even a few days, it would swamp me."

"Whenever I leave my desk for a week or two on holiday, it takes me a whole day to open and read the accumulated mail."

"When I leave for longer periods, which is unusual, I am forced, of course, to make other arrangements."

"As I say, I answer letters promptly as a matter of self-defense. But perhaps it should be added that I also believe it to be only decent politeness."

TAKES APPEAL TO HIGH COURT TO ESCAPE JAIL

Tennessee Publisher Sentenced to Serve 6 to 10 Years for Fraud

Asheville, N. C.—(AP)—Luke Lea, Tennessee publisher, turned today to the North Carolina supreme court in an effort to escape serving a six to ten-year sentence imposed after his conviction of defrauding the Central Bank and Trust company, Asheville, of $1,125,000.

Convicted with Lea in the county superior court yesterday were his son, Luke Lea, Jr., and Wallace B. Davis, president of the defendant bank. Lea, Jr., was fined $25,000, including $10,000 court costs, and Davis was sentenced to serve four to six years in prison.

Judge Bar Hill allowed 90 days for preparation of appeal. He fixed bonds at $30,000 for Luke Lea, $10,000 for Luke Lea, Jr., and $10,000 for Davis.

Should appeals fail the elder Lea and Davis would serve their time in state prison at Raleigh. Davis already faces a five to seven years sentence there in connection with the failure of his bank.

E. P. Charley, business associate of the Leas, was acquitted.

The failure of the Central Bank and Trust company last fall came shortly after the collapse of the Asheville firm, with which Lea was closely identified. A large number of banks in several southern states closed with the Caldwell crash.

Lea and Davis combined forces to aid each other, only to be caught in the midst of what state attorneys termed "frenzied finance." Evidence of "rings" was introduced at the trial, along with plans formed by the pair to organize a banking combine from which they would be able to withdraw enough to stem the collapse of their varied business interests.

FARM RELIEF PLANS FACE NEW CONGRESS

Suggests Two or Three Year Moratorium to Farms on Federal Loan System

BY FRANK I. WELLER
(Associated Press Farm Editor)

Washington—(AP)—The new congress promises to see to it that most every conceivable scheme to alleviate the farmer's financial difficulties.

Some advance planning even contemplates an absolute debt moratorium, but this usually steadies down to the more tangible proposition of federal reserve bank reform.

The first scheme, which obviously can hardly obtain although many expect it to be introduced, would extend liquidation of all landed indebtedness. Congress has not the power to regulate private bank collections, but it could grant a two or three year moratorium to all farmers within the federal loan system, the time extension being added to loans at the date of original expiration.

However, most bills likely will seek a more liberal policy on the part of both national and state banks with regard to farm loans. The important thing to agriculture is to get farm land, livestock, crops and other assets accepted by state and federal bank examiners and by the federal reserve board as acceptable security for loans.

The federal reserve system now accepts only "liquid" assets as farm collateral, and agriculture feels that through the inability of financial institutions to use farm mortgage papers with the federal reserve, farm loans have been minimized and loans already carried seriously reduced.

The private banking system of this country, however, always has operated on a "liquid" assets basis, preferring 60- and 90-day renewable notes to the long-time credit involved in farm collateral.

The result is said to have been that the farmer with small holdings but possessed of negotiable stocks and bonds found it easier to obtain bank loans than the farmer of large capital investment who had only his property as security.

On the other hand, tremendous pressure threatens the federal farm loan board for alleged failure to press advantages of the intermediate credit banks and the joint-stock land banks—both of which accept farm land and crops as security.

COMMEND 6 SOLDIERS FOR ASSISTING SICK

Washington—(AP)—Six signal corps radio operators in Alaska have been commended by the war department for tasks of mercy during a scarlet fever and influenza epidemic at Kanakuk, in which 11 persons died.

FREE 2 IN RACINE BOOTLEGGING SLAYING

Racine—(AP)—Dominick Zito, and Zito and Joseph Consin, held as material witnesses in the slaying of John Masina, 28, Milwaukee, were freed last night.

Masina was slain by assailants armed with machine guns and revolvers as he sat drinking beer with two companions in a building next to Zito's last Saturday night. Police blamed a bootlegger's feud for the killing.

Consin was ordered out of Racine upon his release. Police said they believe Masina and his companions were at Consin's "Lulu Joe's Place" prior to the slaying. Consin denied knowing them.

CHICAGO'S PLIGHT SEEN IN RECORDS

Financial Ups and Downs Reflected in Census Bureau Reports

Washington—(AP)—Chicago's financial ups and downs have sent some queer-looking figures into the census bureau statistics of cities' finances.

The great mid-western metropolis, whose mayor recently came out flat with the statement of being broke, looked just that way in the 1929 financial line up, but gave promise of nearer normalcy in 1930 figures, and down again in 1931.

Just how low is the Chicago situation, in which tax levies have been tied up partially untangled, and re-knotted in state legislation, only the "financial statistics of cities" comparisons can reveal.

Among 13 cities having a 500,000 population and over in 1929 tables, Chicago reported least revenue from general property, special, and poll taxes. The total was $23,390,000 compared to Buffalo, thirteenth city with $23,250,000.

New York, largest city, with more than 6,000,000 inhabitants reported a $467,738,000 tax revenue, 17 times as much as Chicago with more than 3,000,000 population. Philadelphia, nearing the 2,000,000 population mark reported $96,023,000, more than three times Chicago's total.

Census bureau experts said that in the absence of any tax levy whatever in Chicago in 1928, that column in the table being marked for a footnote "data not available," the 1929 collections were practically all delinquent taxes.

But with a $63.63 per capita levy in 1929 as compared with New York's $66.84, the revenue, not yet compiled by the bureau, probably will exceed $100,000,000, or about the normal.

However, that won't make Chicago as prosperous as she may look, for 1930 funds but filled some of the earlier gaps, and this year sees the tax levy again tied up in state legislation.

In years to come, however, census bureau experts prophesy a table in which Chicago's revenue figure will loom larger proportionately than all the rest of the cities—when the Illinois legislature straightens out the levy tangle, and all the delinquent taxes are paid.

FLASHES OF LIFE

Paris—Marshal Henri Pétain, hero of Verdun, refuses to wear his many medals and decorations in public. "I wouldn't mind wearing them on my nightshirt," he confided to a girl interviewer, "but I don't believe in parading them around by day."

Rotenburg on Fulda, Germany—A young heckler at a public meeting has had a painful reminder that the "withered hand" of Philip Scheidemann is purely a figure of speech. Scheidemann opposed signing of the Treaty of Versailles, exclaiming: "The Reichstag, 'withered' be the hand that signs this treaty."

The heckler wanted to see the "withered hand." His answer was a smart box on the ear.

Butler, Pa.—Perhaps soft wood won't hurt so much. Anyway the school board has issued specifications for paddles to be used on the school kids. The paddles must be made of soft pine and not more than one-quarter inch thick. A regulation paddle was ordered after a teacher was haled to court for using a heavy one.

Philadelphia—Grove Cleveland Alexander, manager of the House of David baseball club, has a clause in his contract calling for 25 cents a day for a shave. He sees that he gets both the money and the shave. The House of David players are known by their luxurious beards and unshorn locks.

General Weather

Light showers occurred over southern Iowa, Illinois and eastern Michigan during the last 24 hours, caused by a shallow low pressure area which overlies Illinois this morning. Low pressure also covers the entire mountain region and plains states, with unsettled weather prevailing over those sections. High temperatures were quite general over the western states yesterday but much cooler prevails over the south central states and lake region. However, warmer weather is expected to replace this by Thursday, with continued fair in this section during the next 24 hours.

Fox Names Own Baby Stars, Drops From Wampas Group

BY JESSIE HENDERSON

Copyright, 1931, By Cons. Press

Hollywood—(CPA)—Turned down flat by the Wampas association in its annual selection of 13 Wampas baby stars, three young picture actresses obtain as a direct result one of the greatest breaks in motion picture history and as another direct result the Fox Studios may withdraw from the Will Hays organization. The break received by the three girls also marks a dramatic break between the Fox studios and the Western Association of Motion Picture advertisers, an organization of picture publicity men familiarly known as the Wampas.

In this year's selection of baby stars the Wampas chose a prospective star from every studio except Fox and as usual these young actresses will blithely continue their careers with the added glory of Wampas publicity and endorsement behind them. Wampas rejected the three Fox candidates for various reasons which the Fox studios officially characterized as hokey. Immediately the 11 Fox officials who were Wampas members resigned from the organization and the Fox studios decided to elect annually three debutante stars of their own and be damned to fortune.

Will Lavish Fortune

Upon these debutante stars will be lavished a fortune in grooming, training, and picture opportunities.

The first three debutante stars are Linda Watkins, 21, of Boston, Mass., a blonde; Conchita Montenegro, 19, of San Sebastian, Spain, a brunette; and Helen Mack, 18, of Rock Island, Ill., a redhead. Because of their defeat at the hands of the Wampas, by the way, the three young starlets have received only the big break from Fox studios but also a remarkable amount of local publicity. Though beginners, all three actresses have had some stage and picture experience.

In withdrawing from the Wampas a powerful group here, the Fox studios are withdrawing from a 10-year old organization which has the endorsement of the Will Hays Association of Motion Picture Producers. This is why a withdrawal by Fox from the Will Hays association appears also imminent. Meanwhile, the battle of the publicity stunts has been taken up by the officials of all the studios and between allegation and denial a very, very merry time is being had by all.

In short, everyone has something to say about the matter except the Wampas babies or the Fox debutantes. These are either babies or debutantes according to whether the studios to which they are under contract happens at the moment to be a standpatter or Fox.

A WILL THAT FAILED

Eight years before this elderly manufacturer died he made his will. When it was opened and read, several pencilled notes were discovered—changes he had planned but never actually made. His intentions failed because they were not a valid part of his will.

A man's will is, in a very real sense, "a failure" unless it expresses his latest wishes.

Have you read over your own will lately? Does it need revision? By all means bring it up to date with the help of your lawyer.

CAN'T GIVE U. S. SHIPS PREFERENCE

Washington—(AP)—As the farm board is not paying the freight on the coffee and wheat exchanged with Brazil, president Hoover does not believe it can very well say the commodities must be shipped in American ships.

The chief executive takes the position the board makes its own commercial agreements and he has no intention of interfering with them. American shipowners have protested to the board against failure to insert a provision in the exchange agreement to insure carriage of the cargoes in American vessels, but the board has expressed the opinion the contract can not be reopened for such purpose.

Under the law creating the farm board it has no money with which to pay the freight.

Officials interested in the transaction said Brazil probably would call for bids to handle both the coffee and the wheat and American ships would have the privilege of bidding with vessels under other flags.

Make Your Child Keep His Dates

BY ANGELO PATRI

"I'm going out this afternoon with Marie, mother."

A look of surprise lighted mother's eyes and she made as though to speak, seemed to change her mind and served June another potato.

"I know you wouldn't mind, I told her I'd be over at half past two."

"Well, June, it seems to me that you might have consulted me before you made the engagement. A little girl ten years old hardly knows enough about what is going on to make her own engagements. You know I do not like to have you do that, I have told you repeatedly to ask me first. I've never refused you anything that was reasonable."

"I'm old enough, mother. I know I want to go with Marie. Her mother is going to take us to the office to meet her father and drive home along the river. I'd like a drive today."

"It is too bad, Aunt Judy called up a while ago and invited you to go with her to her place in the country. She is going to stay over night and spend the next day. She knew you loved the ride and she thought you would like to have a swim with her, and a picnic lunch. But as long as you have made this engagement you cannot accept Aunt Judy's invitation, of course. I told her you would like to go, I was sure. But I thought you were free. It is too bad."

June's eyes had kept growing darker and darker. Now they filled with tears. "O mother, you surely won't make me keep my engagement with Marie when I can just as well break it and go with Aunt Judy. You know I want to go with her."

"That is why I have told you again and again not to make engagements on your own. You do not know what is happening. You are not old enough. If you make an engagement you have to keep it. I can see no other way. You wouldn't like to tell Marie that you won't go with her because you have a chance to go with Aunt Judy? That would hardly do."

June thought a while. "Mother, I made a mistake in the first place. I shouldn't have said I would go until I had asked you. Serves me right. But I do want to go with Aunt Judy. If I ask Marie to excuse me and explain why I don't want to go, can I go with Aunt Judy?"

"I suppose so. But June, remember. The only reason that I allow you to ask to be excused today is that you are only ten years old. A little girl of ten years is allowed one mistake. But no more. Ask me about the invitations you accept. If you don't you will find yourself in an unpleasant position. I shall say No, or Yes, according to what I think best. When you are older we will talk about this again. Now go and talk Marie to excuse you and explain that you should have asked at home first."

Little boys and girls of ten or thereabouts, feel their dignity. They want to be considered persons. They will make mistakes in asserting themselves now and then. Just set

Certificate Forgeries Detected By New Device

Pittsburgh—(AP)—Is that stock certificate genuine? The "electric eye" can tell.

The "eye" was developed by C. C. Hein, research engineer. Material to be tested is fed through a slot in the box-like device. Light shines upon the material, and a meter at the top shows how much light gets through. By calculation, the thickness of the material under test is determined.

Hein started using the "eye" with the idea of finding how thick paper must be so that print will not show through from the other side. The purpose was to reduce a publication's paper costs.

"It's use is by no means confined to this purpose, however," he said.

them right and encourage them in growing up. But hold them to their responsibilities. No engagements, no promises without confirmation. It is very easy for child to get out of the habit of consulting mother and father. Very easy for them to make sad mistakes in consequence of their feeling of independence. Hold them a little longer.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Alternative Writ of Mandamus Issued, Returnable Sept. 15

Neenah—The Wisconsin supreme court Tuesday accepted original jurisdiction in the Neenah-Menasha municipal court deadlock at a hearing in Madison, and Justice Walter C. Owen, announced that an alternative writ of mandamus will issue "as a matter of public convenience." The alternative writ is returnable Sept. 15.

The action, to force Mayor George E. Sande and the Neenah council to cooperate with Menasha city fathers in the selection of a judge for the joint court created by the 1931 legislature, was requested by Roger R. Tuttrup, Appleton.

Arguing in favor of the Neenah council's stand, J. C. Thompson, Oshkosh, recently named special counsel, pointed out that the law establishing the court provided for a judge in an unconstitutional manner.

He claimed that the court should not order the Neenah council to proceed with an unconstitutional act, pointing out a constitutional requirement that the judge be chosen by the electorate.

Neither the counsel for the petitioner nor the respondent was willing to concede that, if this provision for selection of the judge by the two councils was unconstitutional, the entire act creating the court and providing for election of a judge by voters of the two cities next April also was unconstitutional.

Bank Records Identified In Senate Funds Inquiry

$15,000 to $20,000 for deposit as chairman of the Newspaper Supply company of Richmond.

"Did you have any information that these funds were not of the Newspaper Supply company?" asked Nye.

"No," said Bookner.

C. J. Stevens of Charlottesville, Va., was then called to the stand. He identified a check of $2,433.75 made by him to James Cannon, Jr., on Oct. 10, 1928.

During the examination of Stevens about his check, Robert H. McNeill, counsel for Bishop Cannon, protested that this transaction had nothing to do with the purpose of the inquiry.

"It is part of the juggling of funds involved here," remarked Senator Dill. The protest was denied.

Stevens then explained that the check was the first payment on a house sold by Bishop Cannon as executor of the estate of Mrs. Mary C. Moore, the widow of a Methodist preacher.

Bookner said the Stevens check was sent to the Blackstone bank and $566 was added to it from Bishop Cannon's personal checking account for a $5,000 interest bearing certificate of deposit.

Senator Nye read a letter by Bishop Cannon on Oct. 27, 1928, telling of a deposit of $8,000 in the First National bank of Blackstone. An interest-bearing certificate of deposit was issued to the bishop on this date. The letter said the $8,000 was held in trust by the Newspaper Supply company of Richmond.

Previously, Nye had read an order of June 6, 1921, revoking the charter of the Supply company. Nye said a cashier's check on a New York bank for $8,000 was deposited by Cannon for the interest bearing certificate.

Nye then purchased a check issued by Edwin C. Jameson of New York, for $8,000 on Oct. 19, 1928, to the Lawyers Trust company.

"We will show later," added Nye, "that this $8,000 was exchanged for the cashier's check involved here."

BY MARION HALE

Bridgefield, Conn. — Retirement means the beginning of an exciting new adventure to Geraldine Farrar. Back at her handsome country estate here after a spectacular 30-year career in grand opera, Miss Farrar has no intention of playing an unfamiliar domestic role or becoming a placid suburban matron.

No street sign's going to spend the remainder of her life in "adult play."

"Am I going to keep house or cook?—heaven's no! I never learned to cook in my life and I'm a terrible housekeeper. I have one of the best French cooks in the world. She has been with me 15 years, and if I spent the rest of my life trying I couldn't boil water as well as she does. I've never liked to sew or do any of the housewifery things. To pretend any such interest now would be a sham...."

Determined to Retire

Such is the beginning of Miss Farrar's declaration of independence from the stage where, between the ages of 19 and 49, she has been an international figure. And Miss Farrar insists that she is forever through with the theatre. She even has disposed of the costumes she used in opera, and toward which she had more of a sentimental affection.

Admittedly a "hopeless romantic" and intending to stay such, Miss Farrar is planning more than one pilgrimage to sections of the world where she has been before as a luminary of the operatic world. If necessary, she will travel incognito so that she can sit back and "watch the whole show" without being disturbed.

"Imagine being able to go to China or Japan—or any place you can think of—and not care whether or not you catch cold, or sneeze, or break your arm!"

The mere thought of such a release from past restraints and fears brings a constrained smile.

Life of Denials

It seems that a great artist is trailed by an endless retinue of precautionary admonitions. The "precious throat" is always guarded. And so, although Miss Farrar has been in most parts of the world, she never had time to get opportunities to see scores of things that interest her keenly.

And Miss Farrar is a person of many interests, with a personality that seems to become more vivid with the years and maturing charm. Her hair, simply waved, is a striking study in gray tones. Her girlish eyes are quite as animated as her sparkling smile.

"You know," she went on, "I can even dab my face with powder if I want to. Of course, you have learned how careful they are about powder in the opera. It's taboo because it gets up your nose."

Temporarily she will stay close to her country place here because of her elderly father's state of health. She keeps a servant, most of whom have been with her many years. Her New York residence, in the fashionable Park Avenue section, is looked after by two servants and is kept open the year round.

She's Always Busy

She has had the same manufacturer for more than 20 years; the two daughters of her first marriage carry on her own opera services, most of whom have been with her many years. Her New York residence, in the fashionable Park Avenue section, is looked after by two servants and is kept open the year round.

GRANITE PRODUCTION NOW UP TO SCHEDULE

Green Bay—(A) — Production of granite for the new state office building at Madison is now ahead of the construction program. Supt. Earl H. Eklund of the Wisconsin State reformatory, whose granite shop is producing the cut and finished stone, announced today in answer to charges made by C. A. Halbert, state chief engineer, that delay in finishing the stone was holding up construction of the new building.

"It is true that the production of stone was behind in May, June and July," Mr. Eklund stated. "This was because the state did not own the Amberg quarry property, and we did not feel justified in making extensive improvements, necessary for rapid quarrying, on property that we did not own."

"Late in July the state purchased the property and additions now being made will assure an adequate flow of granite to the finishing shop at the institution, which has ample capacity to handle it."

About 100 men are employed in the finishing shop, and about half that number in the quarry. The stone is a fine-grained gray granite.

Blames Modern Times

"The same thing is affecting opera. We have lovely girls with lovely voices. But they're all too impatient now, it would seem. They don't seem willing to spend the necessary years. Of course, you know what happens. A good looking girl gets some original pictures and then the pictures grab her up at a tremendous salary. You can't blame the girl. She wants money and success and comfort. I'm not blaming anything or anybody—it's the times."

ROTARIANS OF 4 CITIES MEET AT NEW LONDON

William Wagner, Sturgeon Bay, Is Speaker at Joint Session

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The vocational side of Rotary life was discussed in an address by Attorney William Wagner, Sturgeon Bay, past district governor, Monday night before an audience of Rotary club members from Shawano, Clintonville, Marion and New London. About 44 guests from the three visiting clubs were present. The speaker used a Biblical text in which Jesus advised the downtrodden Jewish brethren. "When ye are asked to go one mile go two miles," quoted Mr. Wagner, explaining the laws under which the Roman despots ruled. Bringing the teaching of his talk up to modern days the speaker emphasized the need of doing more than merely the task set. Do more than you are asked to do, he urged, knowing meanwhile that the work set for you is the best work in the world. The grumbler, the shirker, the fault finder have little place in the scheme of success, he said, and the lesson taught in the old days is still good. Go the mile, and when you have finished go the next mile, giving more than good measure of time, effort, thought and spirit, he advised. This lesson, Mr. Wagner said, applied to life in general, but could be admirably applied to the life of Rotarians. He added zest to his talk with illustrations and stories.

Dinner music was contributed by the Russell trio, comprising Clyde Russell of Marinette, Dale Russell of Ogdensburg and Everett Russell of Manitowish. H. Peterson of Waupaca acted as accompanist to the group of songs presented, many of which were the original compositions of Dale Russell.

PENNOCK SETS DOWN SOX 8-0; CUBS LOSE TWO

Giants Now Lead Bruins by Five Games in Race for Second Place

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

HAVING pretty well settled the question of team supremacy in the two major leagues, the boys have hit upon a new scheme to whet the interest of the fans. They're putting on track meets, and the possibilities are limitless.

When Ben Chapman, the Yankees' favorite speedster, outpaced Carl Reynolds of the White Sox in a special match race before yesterday's tilt at Chicago, something undoubtedly was started. From now on the customers perhaps will expect to see jumping bids and cinder paths as regular equipment in all well regulated ballparks.

Chapman, seeking more sprinters to conquer, already has issued a defy to any player in the American league for a 100-yard-match race, and they're talking of pitting him against the National league's "peet" champion as a feature of the approaching world series. If they can arrange that and, say, a shot-putting contest between Babe Ruth and Buzz Adlett, the fans will be assured some choice entertainment.

Wins By 4 Yards
After beating by stride four yards in their special dash, Chapman utilized his speed in the game that followed to steal his fifth and first bases of the year. The last American leaguer to equal T. T. mark was George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns, in 1922. He still, however, is far from Ty Cobb's 1915 record of 96 thefts.

The Yankees won, incidentally, 8 to 0, behind Herb Pennock's six-hit pitching. It was the first shut-out in the McCarthy era in this season.

Eddie Rommel hurled the long-gone Athletics to a 4 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Browns, allowing only six hits along the way. The Washington Senators, so far back now it scarcely matters, thumped the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 1. Lloyd Brown limited the Tigers to four hits in eight innings, one of them a homerun by Roy Johnson. Rahn prevented the scheduled bout between Cleveland and the Red Sox.

Giants Beat Cub Twice
Their sails all set for second place in the National league, the Giants helped matters along by trimming the Chicago Cubs twice, 5 to 3 and 7 to 1, stretching their lead over the Hornsby clan to five games. Carl Hubbell's five-hit pitching and Mel Ott's homerun with two on featured the first Jim Chaplin stopped the visitors cold in the second, Ralston Hemmley's homer depriving him of a shutout.

The Robins, likewise nursing second place ambitions, divided a pair with the Pittsburgh Pirates. A four-run spurge off Watson Clark in the eighth inning gave the Pirates the opener, 5 to 3. Fred Heimach squared matters by holding them to three hits and winning the nightcap, 5 to 0. Babe Herman's homerun with two on in the first supplied the winning runs.

REEDSVILLE COPS EASTERN PENNANT

Lefty Fortin Cinches Flag With 4 and 0 Win Over Brillion

EASTERN WIS. LEAGUE
Reedsville	W L Pct.
Valders	11 4 .732
Kiel	10 6 .625
Brillion	7 8 .467
Hilbert	5 10 .333

RESULTS SUNDAY
Reedsville 4, Brillion 0.
Valders 6, Kiel 3.
Chilton 3, Wrightstown 2, (11 innings).

GAMES NEXT SUNDAY
Brillion at Chilton.
Wrightstown at Reedsville.
Valders at Hilbert.

"Lefty" Fortin made certain Sunday that Reedsville would win the pennant in the Eastern Wisconsin loop when he shut out Brillion 4 to 0, and fanned fifteen men and held his opponents to five hits. Reedsville now has a full three game lead over the second place Valders team, which Sunday dropped Kiel to third place with a 6 to 3 victory. Reedsville has but one more game to play, next Sunday with Wrightstown, being idle on the last playing date of the season, Sept. 6.

By the victory over Kiel on Sunday, Valders is practically assured of finishing in second place. In the third game Sunday at Wrightstown, Chilton was victorious 3 to 0 in a close game. It went 11 innings. Koenike and Fox was the battery for Chilton and Van Zealand and Willenberg for Wrightstown.

San Jose, Calif.—Bobby Vincent, Okla., outpunted Pete Myers, San Francisco (10).

Chapman Speediest

Ben Chapman, right, of the Yankees yesterday clinched his claim to being the fastest man in the American league when he beat Carl Reynolds, (left) pride of the White Sox in a 100 yard dash. Chapman won by four yards. He then went out and stole two more bases.

Valley League Gossip

It is all over but the shouting in the Valley league as Kaukauna sewed up the bunting on Sunday by taking the old rivals, Appleton, into camp, 9 to 5. The crowd was the biggest of the season in the Electric City.

Green Bay went into a tie with Appleton for third position as a result of a 3-5 victory over Kimberly. The Papermakers' defense wobbled at crucial periods and this enabled the Sox to keep the bacon at home.

Wisconsin Rapids made it four in a row over Shawano to the tune of 15 to 3. The 1930 champs had the Indian sign on Hoffman's tribe all year and in each one of the four games ran their score totals into twin figures.

Irish Wall, Green Bay center fielder, climbed the fence in the Kimberly game to snag with his gloved hand a triple ticketed for a home run off the bat of Pocan. Wall stabilized the ball as it was going over the barrier.

Prange, the Kaukauna shortstop, who soon goes back east to school at Seaton Hall college, where Red

BLUES MAY GRAB OFF SECOND PLACE IN AA; BREWS FINALLY LOSE

Red Birds Beat Milwaukee When Turgeon Errors in Eighth

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO — (AP)—The Kansas City Blues today were in a swell position to grab off undisputed possession of second place in the American association during the next two days.

The Blues yesterday moved into a tie with Indianapolis for the runner up position, by taking their second straight over Toledo, 4 to 3, while St. Paul was defeating the Indians, 4 to 2, to even up their series. Two more games remain in the present set, and if the Saints run true to their recent form, the Indians will win no more games from them in this series and Kansas City needs only to get an even break with the Mud Hens.

Since St. Paul opened its drive into the leadership, no team, except Kansas City, has been able to win more than one game a series. The Blues split even in four games, during the last Saint appearance at Kansas City. Yesterday's victory over the Indians restored St. Paul's margin of 14 full games made, and Hens are 5 times.

Toledo's fielding was the big factor in Kansas City's victory. The Mud Hens were charged with five errors and one of them, a heave in center field by Pitcher Ernie Wingo, put Eddie Pick in position to score the winning run in the eighth. Both Wingo and Bill Swift, who hurried for the Blues, gave seven hits.

St. Paul bunched three hits for three runs off Smith in the first inning and Indianapolis never was able to quite catch up. Hildebrand held the Saints safe until he was removed for a pinch batsman in the seventh, and the extra run was scored off Archie Campbell. Huck Betts gave Indianapolis nine hits, one more than the Saints made, and was credited with his seventeenth victory of the season.

Milwaukee's winning streak was snapped at seven games when Columbus scored a 6 to 5 victory. Pete Turgeon's error with two out in the eighth, gave the Red Birds the run that enabled them to stand off a three run ninth inning rally by the Brewers. The rally included a double by Dinty Gearin, a single by Manager Frank O'Rourke and a pinch-hit home run by Ted Gullie.

Louisville scored its second straight over Minneapolis, rallying in the seventh and ninth innings for a 4 to 2 decision. Mervyn Shea's single with the bases full in the ninth was the deciding blow.

Smith coaches, had a big day with the bat against Kaukauna. He collected a home and two run scoring singles.

Eddie Kotal isn't going to talk about errors any more. Before the tilt with Kimberly, the Bay shortstop said he hadn't mused a fielding chance in two months. Then he went up and kicked up a pair of grass cutters.

Kaukauna and Sheboygan club owners, together with the executives of the Valley and State leagues, will get together in the next few days and arrange plans for the post season series between the Kaws and Chairs.

Pinchard, a Green Bay amateur umpire, broke into the Valley league ranks Sunday by handling the Wisconsin Rapids-Shawano game and gave a good account of himself. He will probably be signed up for the 1932 season.

Len Smith shook up his batting list in hopes of turning the tide against Kaukauna but met with little success. The Collegians got to Michaelson for ten hits, but they were well scattered except in two frames.

The home run habit must run in the Smith family of Kaukauna. Les has been clouting all season and now Ray, a younger brother, is doing a bit of the Ruthian stuff. He has counted a homer apiece in the last two games.

Manager Pocan of Kimberly has been giving some of the youngsters a chance to show their worth in Valley league ball. The Papermakers have not a chance to get out of the second division so the kids are being tried out.

The Shawano fans got a thrill for a minute at the Wisconsin Rapids game as the Indians went out in the first frame and scored two runs to take the lead, but it was short-lived as the Rapids went wild in the second.

Skimmer Becker, veteran Green Bay left fielder, found Pocan's offerings very much to his liking on Sunday. He connected for a pair of triples and twin sackers. Every one of his blows made a dent in the outfield fence.

Every time Wisconsin Rapids mingles with Shawano, Leo Huber's crew fatten their batting averages. Last year's champs got 18 hits in Sunday's game. Kuenn, Hribanik, Brandt and McLean each coming through with three each.

Wally Simmons won't be seen in action with Green Bay again this season as the Milwaukee youngster injured his ankle while practicing. Simmons is a good looking ball player and he will probably be back with the Bays in 1932.

Hartjes, who was the Kimberly backstop for three seasons, has returned to the battle front as an outfielder. During the first half of the season, Hartjes was seeing action in one of the minor leagues in this district.

Kaukauna played errorless ball against Appleton. The Electric City combination is at the peak of its game right now and the Valley leaguers feel confident that Lamers' tribe will make things hot for the Sheboygan Chairs.

The feature attraction on Sunday is the third place battle at Appleton between the Collegians and Chairs. The pennant winning Kaukauna club will cross bats with Shawano while Kimberly is slated to face Wisconsin Rapids.

YANKEES HAVE WON 10 GAMES FROM SOX

Chicago — (AP)—Today's New York Yankees-Chicago game was a "crucial" one for the White Sox. A victory over the Yankees couldn't lift the Sox out of the cellar unless Boston lost, but it would spare them the humiliation of losing a game of the season series in C. to Joe McCarthy's club. The Yanks yesterday made it ten straight over the Sox in Comiskey park

TAIT LITTMAN WINS FROM HAM JENKINS IN N. B. A. TOURNEY

Gorilla Jones and Clyde Chastain Also Cop at Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE — (AP)—Winners in the first three bouts of an elimination tournament staged by the National Boxing association to crown a world's middleweight champion, Tait Littman, Cudaby, Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., and Clyde Chastain, Dallas, Tex., today remained in the running for the title vacated by Mickey Walker.

Each moved into the second round of the tourney on the decision of judges in 10-round bouts at Borchert field last night. More than 6,000 fight fans witnessed the outdoor show.

Littman, who scaled exactly 160 pounds, the required weight, scored a surprise victory over Ham Jenkins, Denver, Colo., Negro, weighing 156½. Jones, at 149½, defeated Tiger Thomas, 152½, of Leipsville, Pa., and Chastain 153½, beat Rudy Marshall, 153½, Greenwich, Conn., Negro.

The Cudaby fighter's much touted right hand served him well, earning him victory in the wind-up affair. Six rounds were scored for Littman while Jenkins had three to his credit and one was even. Littman's best round was the sixth, when he pelted the Denverite with a series of short rights to the face.

Jones Wins Negro Title
The judges' decision awarding Jones his bout and the Negro middleweight championship proved unpopular with the fans. For the most part the two Negroes jabbed away at each other's midsection and there were comparatively few attempts to land blows on the head. Thomas was the aggressor throughout the fight, with Jones apparently content to escape punishing blows delivered during in-fighting.

Chastain was credited with winning six rounds, while three were even and one was chalked up for Marshall. The Greenwich Negro was unable to fathom the style of fight carried to him by the Texan and appeared dismayed when attempts to rush Chastain failed.

Tourney promoters announced the next three bouts will be held next Tuesday night. The participants will be held next Tuesday night. The participants will be selected from the following: Frank Butaglia, Winnipeg, Man.; Vince Dundee, Baltimore, Md.; George Nichols, Buffalo, N. Y.; Roy (Tiger) Williams, Chicago; Angel Chiville, Porto Rico champion; Pete Suskey, Scranton, Pa.; Frank O'Brien, Hartford, Conn.; and Jack McVey, New York.

PACKART-ST TIGERS WIN BALL GAME, 25-0

Packard-St Tigers a ball team of Appleton youngsters walloped DeWitts Beefeers in a game staged Tuesday, by a score of 25 and 0. The Tigers counted 21 hits and scored three runs in the first inning, four in the second, 12 in the third, one in the fifth and three in the

Cochrane, Simmons, Haas, Boley On Hospital List

PHILADELPHIA — (AP)—Despite injuries the world champion Athletics are in front 141 games. Down the home stretch they are playing with four regulars on the bench.

Mickey Cochrane, catcher, is the latest casualty. He returned home yesterday for a rest at the seashore, suffering from dizzy spells which have been keeping him from sleep. His physician refused to disclose whether the ailment resulted from sinus trouble, which has bothered him, or from injuries received ten days ago when hit in the head with a pitch. When Cochrane left the A's at St. Louis, he joined Al Simmons, George Haas and Joe Boley on the disability list.

Jimmy Dykes, Max Bishop and Johnny Heving, Cochrane's understudy, have also been out of the game during the last month but are now back.

sixth De Beefeers counted but five hits.

The winning team's members were Earl Lapske, Art Schade, Russell Dean, Lyle Eggert, Elmer Deprey, Bobby Ertl, Eddie Mitchell, J. Geenen, Stanley Tesch. The Beefer lineup included Bud DeWall, Eugene Priebe, Harold Debro, Buddie Besch, Bob Berry, Bill Besch, L. Cliftz.

Chicago—Henry Firpo, Louisville, outpunted Mickey Patrick, Chicago (8).

After the champions had been ailing during the early part of the season the club physician got the boys back in shape late in July. But Jimmy Dykes pulled up lame and Joe Boley joined him with a second charleyhorse.

Then Haas fractured a wrist and Max Bishop, at second, took down with the heat and was out for a week. Johnny Heving suffered a broken nose in an exhibition game and Bing Miller went to the bench with a bad leg.

Two weeks ago Al Simmons, in the midst of a battle with Babe Ruth for a batting honors of the American league, twisted one ankle and was unable to play left field.

Tuesday's game saw Dibs Williams at short for Boley, Heving behind the plate, Cramer in center and Jim Moore in left.

George Earnshaw hasn't worked in the box for almost two weeks and some say his arm is sore. Connie Mack hasn't announced it.

Mack is giving his first stringers all the rest they need and want. His reserves have delivered in the pinch, even hitting and fielding at times as well as the regulars.

Cochrane believes he'll be back Monday. Simmons expects to return to left field next week. Haas and Boley have hopes.

Connie Mack's charges had trouble with the Yankees last year but were all around for world series call.

HARRY SINCLAIR TO SELL STABLES SEPT. 3

Racine, Wis., N. Y. — (AP)—Whether Harry F. Sinclair's retirement from thoroughbred racing would be a permanent or a temporary affair was a matter of much conjecture today. Sinclair's Racine stable is to pass from the picture Sept. 3, when the stable's 25 horses in training will be sold.

Friends of the millionaire oilman and sportsman say, however, that his green capped silks will be on the turf again next year and point to Sinclair's large breeding farm at Jobstown, N. J., where over 190 mares, yearlings and weanlings are quartered. Sinclair refused to discuss his future plans when he announced his retirement "because he was unable to give his stable proper attention" but his three great aces, Zev, Lucillite and Bud Lerner, will not be sold.

ERROR GIVES JUNIOR ALL STARS 4-1 WIN

Scoring three runs in the sixth inning when Ashman of the Foresters dropped a throw, The Junior All Stars won another softball game last night by a score of 4 and 1. Previous to the Miscue the Juniors led 1 and 0.

The Juniors scored first in the fourth inning when one run went over the plate after a walk. Then came the sixth with three tallies. The Foresters scored their lone run in the seventh on a wild pitch after two men were out.

Batteries for the Foresters were Griesbach and Kitzinger; for the Juniors, Mitchell and Manier.

RED WOODWORTH WILL NOT PLAY WITH BAYS

Chicago.—Wade (Red) Woodworth, former Northwestern guard, will enter the coaching field instead of playing professional football as he first planned. Woodworth yesterday agreed to coach the line at the university of Cincinnati the coming season. He had previously signed a contract to play with the Green Bay Packers, but a clause in the agreement permitted him to get his release if he obtained a coaching job.

stages but in the latter innings with darkness coming both teams erred a number of times and a lot of scoring resulted.

Bouressa the Kimberly slasher held the visitors scoreless in the first three innings. His teammates scored one run in the second and one run in the third. The "Fords" scored their first run in the fourth and took the lead when they shoved over two more runs in the sixth. Kimberly came back strong in the seventh and before the third man was out four runs had crossed the rubber. The Fords staged a big rally that netted them six runs in the eighth but the Aces scored five more tallies in their half the same inning and held the visitors scoreless in the ninth.

Batteries for Kaukauna were Kock pitching, G. Block catching; for Kimberly, Bouressa pitching and R. Schwank catching. A return game will be played at Kaukauna some time this week.

Four Hanley Boys Will Be Coaching This Fall

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS
Copyright 1931

CHICAGO.—(CPA)—With four brothers engaged in teaching the science of collegiate football, the Hanley family of Spokane, Wash., can lay claim to an unique position in the great autumnal game. Dick the eldest of the clan is head coach at Northwestern university and is assisted by Leroy, better known as "Pat." Myron is taking up an assistant's position on the Pennsylvania University coaching staff within a few days and Lee has just signed to direct the backfield at South Carolina University.

There are two other brothers who played collegiate football but pharmacy caught one and a selling job the other. Still the family has done right well by the game of football.

Dick the Most Famous of the brothers. He was a great quarter back for Washington State back in 1916-17 and helped the Cougars win a Big Ten Bowl game from Brown. In his early coaching days he built the Haskell Indians eleven in national prominence and last year not only gave Northwestern a Big Ten championship team but also developed one of the best of the season.

Pat, who played end at Washington State when Dick was starting at quarterback, is Northwestern's head line coach and ranks as one of the best in the game in that department of coaching. He also is a very keen scout and not a little of Northwestern's success was due to his work with the line and his canny diagnosis of rival eleven's.

Myron, who goes by the name of "Mike" trailed to Washington University rather than Washington State and became quite a halfback and kicker under Coach Bagshaw. He played with the Huskies during the days of Wildcat Wilson and the Trestle hops, when Washington was one of the big shots of Pacific coast football. Later he worked as an

CAMPOLLO GETS HIS BIGGEST TEST WITH SHARKEY'S PROTEGE

Meets Ernie Schaaf in Eb-bets Field Ring; Boston Boy Favorite

BY HUGH S. FULLENTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
New York (AP)—Ponderous but powerful pugilism is in order at Eb-bets Field tonight as Victorio Campollo, the huge Argentine heavyweight, meets Ernie Schaaf, a slightly smaller brawler from Boston, over the 12 round route. Tonight's bout probably will decide for Campollo whether his aspirations to advance as a heavy-weight contender will continue or be snuffed out.

The Argentine, one of Tex Rickard's last and least successful imports, is facing one of the longest men he ever has met in the ring. Campollo is six feet, seven inches in height and weighs 240 pounds. Schaaf is well over the 200 pound mark and has, in addition, blossomed out as a strong puncher in his recent bouts. They have displayed one fault in common. Neither has shown much ability to think quickly in a crisis.

Schaaf's newly discovered clout, which has brought him a string of victories including two knockout triumphs over Jimmy Maloney since he lost a decision to Tommy Lough, was easily last spring, has made Jack Sharkey's protege a 2 to 1 favorite. His backers believe that Ernie will wear his big opponent down before the end of 12 rounds and possibly put over a finishing wallop. Campollo never has been knocked out in this country, taking the count only at the hands of Monte Munn in Buenos Aires.

The Argentine's list of triumphs is unimpressive for a brawler who was once expected to emulate the feats of Luis Angel Firpo. His greatest victory was a technical knockout over Tom Heeney and he has even been known to lose a decision to Phil Scott.

BO MOLENDAS SIGNED WITH BAY PACKERS
Veteran Backfield Performer Has Been Pitching Ball This Summer

Green Bay.—A veteran of more than two seasons in the Green Bay Packer backfield, who has aided in bringing two national championships to the city, again will perform behind the Bay forward wall, with the announcement that "Bo" Molenda, one of Michigan's greatest fullbacks, has signed his 1931 contract.

Few Packer regulars are better known in professional football circles than the battering Molenda, who in his undergraduate days teamed with Friedman and Oosterbaan at a powerful Michigan university eleven. After his graduation he toured the country with Red Grange and his New York Yankees, and from this organization he was purchased by the Packers, prior to the end of the 1929 season, joining his new team at Atlantic City, N. J.

Player Several Games
He played several games with Green Bay in 1928, and gave promise of fitting perfectly into the Packer machine. This promise was fulfilled in 1929, when with Molenda as a strong backfield cog, the Packers swept to their first professional league title.

Molenda's home city is Detroit, but in the summers of 1928 and 1929 he has hurried baseball for the Green Bay Fox River Valley league entry. He is possessed of about the heaviest set of underpinnings ever seen on a Green Bay gridiron, and has a smashing way all his own, which has earned him everlasting respect in professional football.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

MAKING A LOSE CONTRACT

A LEAD is the right to play a first. A lead is also the obligation to play when you have taken the preceding trick. This right is sometimes of value; at other times it is an "old man of the sea," whom you are anxious to shake from your shoulders.

There are hands that can be made only by throwing the lead to a chosen opponent at the correct moment.

Proper timing of the play is as essential as placing the lead where you want it to be. Hands of this type are usually based, when there is a trump, upon the elimination of all the cards of one or more suits from both the closed hand and the Dummy.

The hand below is an example in which, against the best defense, game can be made in no other way than by the elimination of all the hearts in the Dummy, the one outstanding trump from the West hand and the use of a card in the spade suit to throw the lead to the chosen opponent to force a desired lead at the right time.

The bidding:

South West North East
1♠ Dbl. (1) 3♠ (2) Pass
3♠ (3) Pass Pass (4) Pass

1—West is not quite strong enough to make 2 jump Overcall; i.e. a jump bid in spades over South's opening bid. He holds 3-½ honor-tricks and can support either a spade or a heart declaration. Actually, East and West can make four spades in play but, of course, cannot buy the contract at that price.

2—North has strong assistance for the club bid and, of course, shows that fact at once.

3—South's hand is much stronger than was shown by his opening bid of one club. He raises the contract to game.

4—North cannot bid for a Slam.

The bidding has not indicated that the combined holding in honor-tricks would justify such an attempt. West holds at least 3 honor-tricks, as shown by his Double.

West opened the spade King and this South won with the Ace.

EXTEND ENTRY DATE OF SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT

Oshkosh.—Due to a last-minute call for information from various parts of the state, the closing date for entries for the first all-state softball tournament, to be held here Sept. 5, 6 and 7, has been extended to Thursday of this week, Aug. 27.

Twelve cities have already entered their championship softball teams for the tournament. Oshkosh will be represented by Fluors, the team which annexed the city title in a post-season playoff with the champions of three other local leagues.

In addition to Fluors of Oshkosh, other principal contenders will represent West Allis, Two Rivers, Kenosha, Milwaukee, Racine, Menasha, Sheboygan, Madison, Shorewood, Appleton and Manitowish.

Superior and West Bend are anxious to get in the tourney here, and may file registration before Thursday.

ATTEMPT TO KILL CHILD WEDDING LAW

Authors of Bills Contend Present Rules Invade Hindu Religion

Simla, India.—(AP)—Renewed attempts to abolish the Sarda child marriage restraint act, forbidding marriage to children below the age of 14, were made today by Indian legislators.

The authors of three new bills offered in the assembly contend that the Sarda act constitutes an invasion of sacred religious customs of the Hindus, reaching back thousands of years and allowing children to be betrothed in marriage even in infancy.

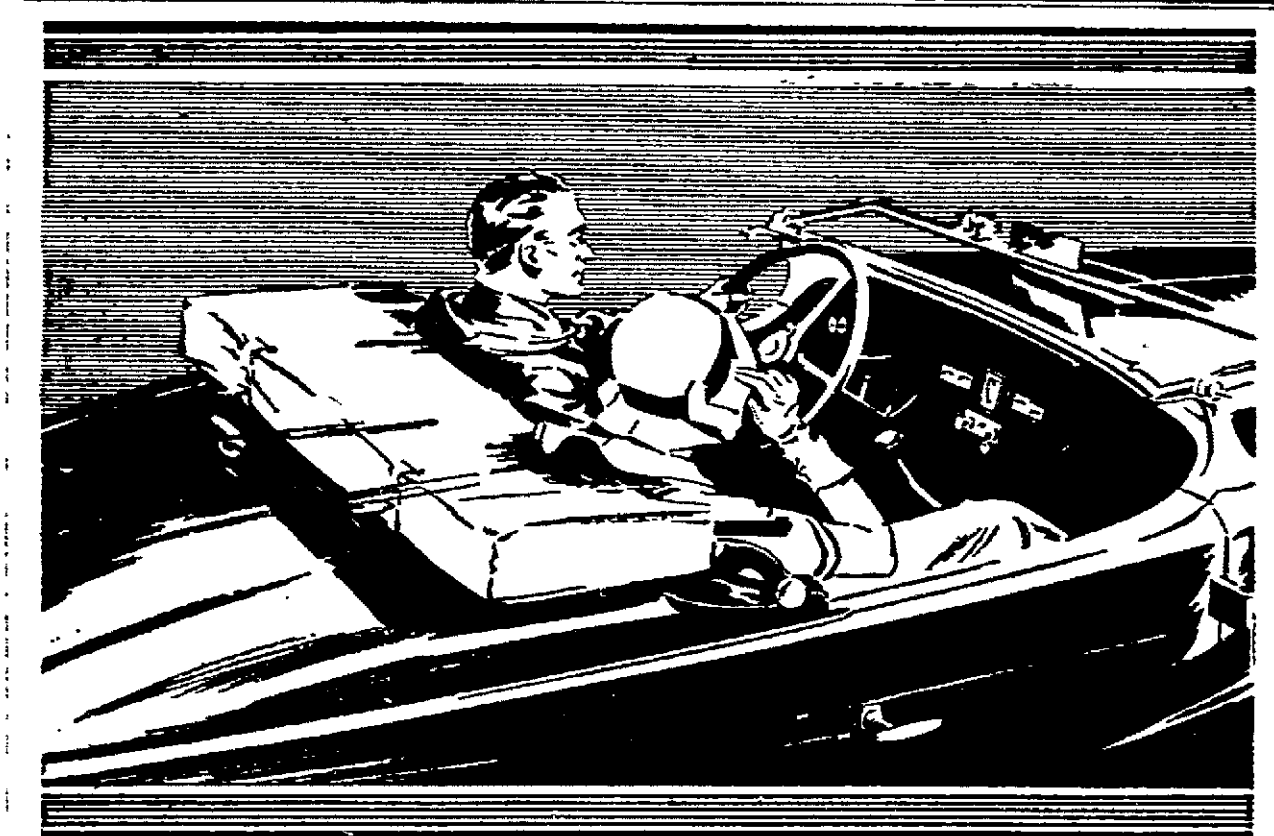

One measure was aimed at preventing the dedication of women in temples as practiced in southern India where all female children of certain castes known as Devadasi (servants of gods) serve in temples and perform dances in religious ceremonies. These girls take a vow never

MOON OF DELIGHT

by Margaret Bell Houston

Chapter 32
A SECRET LEAKS OUT

WELL," said Divitt, with a questioning look at Juanita and a glance in the mar-quesa's direction.

Umberto looked up from his place at the desk as Divitt spoke. Gabreau, standing near the door, had curiosity written on his countenance.

"I'm through," remarked Juanita. "I've brought back your spy, and I'm through."

"She saw me looking in a drawer," the marquesa remarked bolder in the atmosphere of Divitt's office. "I was hunting some sleeping powder, but she grabbed me."

"I've seen things besides that," Juanita interrupted. "I've seen a letter to you in code, Mr. Divitt."

"And that proves what?" asked Divitt.

"I've heard this woman make a telephone call that ended in the robbery of a house we had been entertained in. In fact, every house we have been in has been robbed except the Stanards. I know that she is connected with these robberies and that you are behind her."

"You are insane," said Divitt in a low voice. "Dangerously so. The marquesa may as well accuse you as you her."

"I do accuse her," the marquesa said suddenly.

"Why not?" Juanita asked. "I carried a stolen necklace to the one who had lost it and so gained an entrance to her home."

"I opened the way for this woman into that home and others, into which your chief burglar—with a glance at Umberto—"has entered. Accuse me, if you like, Mr. Divitt. We will accuse each other. Perhaps the police court will bring out the facts. In any case, I'm through."

Divitt was looking at her.

"You're pretty brave now about police courts, aren't you?" he said. "You weren't so brave when you first got here. You've been running around, showing your face and finding nobody that recognized it till you feel safe anywhere."

"Well, let me tell you the police court would be safe as a mother's arms for me in comparison with what it would be for you. Further than that, you know nothing about me, can prove nothing. What you is a coward. But I know everything about you."

Juanita's hand reached gropingly for the chair, found Gabreau's arm instead. She straightened white, holding to Gabreau's arm. "You know nothing," she said.

"I know," said Divitt. "that your name is Beatriz Montega. That you are not in the Argentine, but in Vera Cruz. I know what happened on the night of February tenth and that you are now being hunted in every country to which trains and vessels go."

Not turning from her fixed eyes, Divitt picked up a paper knife lying on the desk, held it out on his palm. "A little blade, Senorita Montega—a slender little knife in a girl's hand."

A low cry cut across his words. He smiled, looking down at her where she lay, white and crumpled, at his feet.

Gabreau lifted her in his arms, bore her along the balcony to her room.

April breeze moving in the courtyard, stirring Molly's flowers, around the fountain, making a silky whisper among the palms. No other sound, except the faint tinkling of the water, the pad-pad of Conchita's feet as she waddled back and forth between the kitchen and Molly's room.

Gabreau sat with Juanita. During the week that had passed since she had burst with the Marquesa into Divitt's office—had brought the Marquesa in as she might bring a sheep—Gabreau had sat often in the chair beside Juanita's bed, obeying her least word.

Fever had burned her at first, and there had been nights of delirium, followed at last by a white lassitude when it seemed she would drift out in the baroque of the great bed as mysteriously as she had come. Conchita had nursed her in those first days, but Conchita was nursing Molly now.

Somewhere the parlors were rocking along without Molly and without Divitt who seldom left Molly's side.

Fifi, the girl who had taken Juanita's place, was gone also, after a dispute with Divitt. Fifi was rather rough in her interpretation of Carmen. A rougher element seemed to be entering the parlors by way of response.

In some way the tidings of Fifi's realism and departing had filtered in to Molly. Molly wrote a tremulous note to Juanita, asking her to come back and pass the cigarettes again. Also, would Juanita come in and see her?

Molly, apparently, had not been told that Juanita was in the house. She had given the note to Gabreau the day after Juanita's return, asking him to get it to Juanita somehow. Gabreau had known that it was useless to give it to Juanita until today.

Today, Juanita reading the note, coming back to earth with a body spent and a vision strangely clarified. Divitt that Molly wished to draw her out of the plight she was in. Molly had known, but Molly had not been in accord with that plight.

This knowledge was to Juanita like a light shining faintly in a dark chaotic world. She resolved to go back to the parlors tonight, if she could walk. And to go to see Molly.

"Molly got somepin," she want to tell you," Gabreau said.

Gabreau had spoken little, sitting at Juanita's side, his long arms dangling over the chair. Juanita liked to see him there. Even to her it had seemed that she was drifting out, that the shore was roving fainter.

"Is Molly very ill, Gabreau?" she asked.

He nodded. "No bebbey now," he said.

Juanita, in her weakness, felt the tears. "Poor Molly!" she said.

"I think she's glad," Gabreau answered quickly. "I don't know, but I think she's glad. Dis ain't no place for child."

"They might not have stayed here if it had come. It might have changed everything."

Gabreau smiled, a faint, strange smile that made his sad face sadder still. "Divitt never change," he said.

Juanita covered her eyes. The thought of Divitt brought back the last moments she remembered, the sight of his face, livid with fear, the sound of his words. She had wondered how he had known, who else knew, how soon they would come, not on her trail, to take her back.

Gabreau waited table for Divitt and Molly. One morning at breakfast, shortly after Juanita had gone with the marquesa, Divitt had opened a paper that had come to him through the mail.

He had recently handed it to Molly, and Molly's exclamation had led Gabreau to peer over her shoulder. He had seen Juanita's picture and beneath it the word "Missing."

He had not had time to read more before Divitt had ordered him sharply to bring in the rolls. Gabreau did not know the name of the paper. It had been printed in English, but it might have been a Mexican paper. Divitt had said to Molly, "I uncovered something that time."

Ay, Dios, yes!...

There was a measure of relief in knowing that only Divitt knew, in knowing that Divitt had known for weeks and had done nothing, was holding his knowledge merely as a whip to drive her, to prevent his own exposure.

But it could not drive her far—never back into the world beside the marquesa. There was another way than that. Brown, sluggish waters, not so far away. . . .

She remembered what Kirk had told her as the yacht was flying down the river into the Gulf. . . .

A fellow I knew dived into this old Mississippi on a bet and never came up. They couldn't even find him. It does that. . . .

Murky, immense, cruel—she had hated to look at the river then. Kirk was beside her in the sunlight. The past seemed blotted out for the moment. She had known nothing of the marquesa's mission. But now her closed eyes looked on the waters unafraid.

Molly—and not the marquesa—leaves the parlors tomorrow. But what will become of Juanita now?

NEW CABINET IN GREAT BRITAIN PLEASES STREET

Resignation of Labor Government Is Seen as Bull Point

BY CARLTON A. SHIVELY
Copyright, 1931, By Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York — (CPA) — With the fall of the MacDonald government in Great Britain and the organization of a new cabinet containing strong representation from conservative sections of British politics, much is heard of financial reform. The phrase has rather an unaccustomed sound to Wall Street, where British conduct of economic and financial affairs always has been considered the essence of soundness.

Ever since the war the various British governments have had to face the task of steering between the theoretical right thing to do from the standpoint of sound finance and the practical necessities. On many occasions it has been found necessary to give ground on the sound financial side because of social considerations. As a matter of sound economics and finance, for instance, no one has ventured to defend the doing of anything which industry and capital are heavily taxed to provide funds to support those out of work. It is argued that, under this tax burden, industry becomes less and less able to expand and provide jobs; but on the other hand, the sentiments of humanity have joined with socialistic theories to drive for economy.

The drive for economy which has resulted in the change in government has centered around the debt system. Decision to reduce state payments to the unemployed precipitated the crisis. Affairs in Great Britain have not yet reached the stage where any government could risk failure to present a budget to parliament. Taxation has been carried about as far as it could well be, and the only alternative was to reduce expenditures. The debt was the obvious place to begin, as offering the largest opportunity for retrenchment.

Inclusion of Stanley Baldwin former prime minister, in the MacDonald cabinet, is interpreted in Wall Street as foreshadowing a moderate tariff for Great Britain, long the world's great exponent of free trade. A few industries have a measure of protection under the so-called safeguarding act. Adoption of a small tariff on most products has been agitated for some time, not as a departure from the traditional free trade policy of the country, but strictly as a revenue producing measure. Observers here regard a tariff of, say, ten per cent as highly probable. Such duties would yield considerable revenue to the government and scarcely hamper the flow of trade.

Meanwhile Wall Street is discussing the possibility of a new British credit. Rumors that the approaching visit of Governor Montagu Norman of the bank of England will result either in a plan for the valorization of silver or a long term bond issue for Great Britain are given little credence in well informed quarters. Short term credit in another affair. Obviously the pound sterling, forced to bear the brunt of credit disturbances in all parts of the world owing to London's position as world banker, is in temporary need of support, until it becomes clear that Great Britain will have a balanced budget without resort to such drastic measures as would further hamper trade.

The federal reserve bank recently joined with the bank of France in granting a three months credit of $250,000,000 to the bank of England. This credit may be renewed, but opinion leans to the substitution of a private banking credit. The Bank of England already is bearing a heavy burden of credit extension on its own part. Sterling is pressed primarily because of the uncertainties in the British government's program, and the treasury therefore is the logical defender of the pound. The treasury could arrange credits only with private bankers.

Wall Street banks which have joined in British credits in former years are known to be receptive to such proposals at this time, and feel that the new government insures a sounder fiscal policy and such needed economic reforms as will guarantee the old-time confidence in the country. In Great Britain, as well as in this country, there always has been some doubt as to the fitness of a socialist government to retain the confidence of capital. For that reason Wall Street holds as a bull point the change in the government.

Who's News Today

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1931, By Cons. Press
New York — (CPA) — With stocky, earnest Joseph W. McKee subbing as mayor while Jimmy Walker hunts new health abroad, the lighter aspects of New York city's war on gangsters will get practically no attention at all. Acting Mayor McKee probably wouldn't recognize a wisecrack if it walked up and shook his hand. Broadway and the night clubs, where an alert mind can pick up an unlimited supply of vaudeville wit suitable for any occasion, are unknown regions to him.

If a sound sleep in Greek is required, however, Mr. McKee may oblige. A college man who believes more college men should get into politics, he was a teacher of Greek before adorning his home borough of the Bronx sent him to the state legislature. He has been president of the board of aldermen since 1926. A serious, plainspoken one. When exuberant citizens once suggested he help select the seven chief wonders of the world, he replied they would waste less time if they selected the seven major blights. And another time he cut an argument saying, "Liar," in a voice that needed no radio.

Blue-eyed, brown haired and still handsome enough at forty to stampede a stenographer's convention, McKee likes best his home, his books, mostly biographies, and his job. He is always on time at that. He works like a mule at it. He pooh-poohs any talk of a generally corrupt police force, admits city administration is too extravagant, and when the public presses a more turnly sinew moral sense. Politics is only his temporary vocation. Law, he insists, will eventually claim him. But his friends say that before that happens he will serve a term as mayor in his own right. They hold that Walker's political health, too, is poor.

The promise of William Gibbs McAdoo to serve as a backer should be a downright jolt of electricity to the new day being organized in New York. The man who tied the Democratic convention of 1924 into a knot through 100 ballots, does few things by halves. When he backs he boosts. And he would rather work than earn. As director general of the nation's railroads during the war, he found time for other jobs. Prior to that he had built tunnels under the Hudson river, after pessimists who had tried said it couldn't be done.

His face fits the sort of man he is. It is lean, almost hawklike on top of a long, angular frame. It is a precise face, too, and that is no deception, for he is a precise man. At 68 he still catches mispelled letters in his letters. As a boy he milled over before studying the law, and he can still turn out a proper batch of the biscuits he learned to make after the milking was done. He is, as everyone knows, married to a daughter of Woodrow Wilson who coaxed him into politics.

A calm rear admiral, whose poise has stood the test of half-a-century, dives in submarines during the world war, Thomas C. Hart is probably unperturbed by the politicians who are shouting, "not!" at the recommendation that four Annapolis misships be thrown out for breaking academy rules. Quite likely, too, he is not entirely unamused. He has that kind of face, at least. It is long and thin, and sober enough at bottom because of a Coolidge mouth; but higher up are quizzical eyes, all bound around with wrinkles from gazing at far horizons. Fifty-four years old, the admiral is himself a graduate of the academy of which he is now superintendent. That should rate him above congressmen when it comes to refereeing conduct there.

You cultivate a more practical outlook on life, will suffer rudely the shocks of realism. You place too much confidence in other people and other people's ideas, and let your feelings run away with you. You are too easily affected by others. You must learn independence of mind and spirit, and in this way could attain great heights. You are a highly gifted person, artistic, creative and subject to inspiration, and with a little serious effort could assure yourself of a very wonderful career. You are ambitious, but your enthusiasm is apt to wane a trifle too quickly. Be a little more determined! Do not let momentary failure daunt your efforts.

You have a great fondness for pleasure and social life, and are, on the whole, a very popular individual. You have a subtle intellect, and combine brilliant conversational ability with intelligent listening. You have a very generous nature; at times a trifle too soft-hearted, people are wont to take advantage of your charity. You are always ready to help others and your kindness endears you to all who know you. Your loving and loyal disposition insures you a great deal of happiness in your home life.

Tells How It Feels To Fly Mail Over Difficult Route

Washington, D. C. — Flying the mail over "the most difficult air-plane route in the world," exploring the new geography of the air over the Andes—a geography that is made up of cloud banks, aviation ceilings, wind currents, fog, sleet and driving "snow sheets" blown from Andean peaks—and amazing aerial adventures are described in a bulletin of the National Geographic society.

The bulletin is based on information furnished by Captain C. K. Travis, the man who has flown the mail over the lonely bleak pass of the Andes known as Uspallata—the Khilbar pass of South America—the air line from Buenos Aires to Santiago. Captain Travis has flown this perilous route 240 times; 23 times he was turned back, and scores of his flights are individual episodes of aerial adventure.

Glittering Days Along the route where pack trains and soldiers toiled in the glittering Spanish days of South America, above the trails where San Martin's famous "Army of the Andes" made its "Delaware Crossing" in defeat of Chilean and Argentine independence, a postage stamp, a railway ticket, and a telephone toll now buy ground communication and transport.

More recently an aerial stamp will carry letters and newspapers over the towering Andean barrier that so long cut off Buenos Aires and the pampas cities of its hinterland from any communication with Santiago and the Chilean littoral.

To take the mail across the sheer skyscraper Andes from Santiago, Chile, the lone pilot boards a special single-seater, equipped with a 625-horsepower super-charged motor. Almost instantly out of the bowl where the city nestles among its encircling peaks the airplane climbs into the mountains, heading for the winging trail that reaches nearly 14,000 feet above sea level. On either side the steep masses of the mountain speak first to 16,000 feet, then to 18,000, and ever upward to the 21,550-foot height of Mount Tupungato on the south and the 23,080-foot peak of Aconcagua, the Everest of the Americas, on the north. Both mountains are guarded by menacing snow formations.

However, flying west to east the plane does not seek a close-up of scenic wonders. Instead it climbs to the ground "ceiling" of 1,000 feet or more of clear atmosphere over Santiago, plunges into the clouds above that, and may have to go through layer after layer of clouds before clear air is reached at 14,000 feet or more above the ground level. It must attain that altitude very soon because the "foothills" of the Andes around Santiago are that high. Later, the plane usually climbs much higher; in fact, Captain Travis has reached 26,000 feet—than flies eastward over the Andes, before a descent is made, often through soft clouds above the clear ceiling usually found in the vicinity of Mendoza.

There mail is swiftly changed to another plane for the level flight across the pampas where super-charging is not necessary. Flying westward, to Santiago, the mountain geography entails an entirely different technique. The prevailing wind is head on against the plane, the ascent is more gradual than on the steep west side of the mountains. Often he is climbing the saw-tooth trail, with steep ridges ahead, trying to keep in the zone of clearer atmosphere which in bad weather extends only about 25 feet above the surface.

Nature Battles Flyer Steep walls sometimes higher than those of our Grand Canyon, rise on either side. Fog, rain, sleet, hail and snow storm assail the lone flyer. Winds sweep snow in sheetlike clouds off the adjacent ridges. Sharp shoulders and ridges obstruct the pass so the flyer must know the route as he knows the way around his own house by night. He must be ready for swift turns and quick climbs—the plane used can climb 20,000 feet with a full load in 35 minutes.

The load carried includes 169 gallons of gasoline, and a mail and parcel cargo of from 200 to 500 pounds on the usual runs; never more than the maximum of 800 pounds.

The flyer has telephoned ahead to find whether there is adequate ceiling for landing at Santiago. He has been keeping close to the ground to make the swift western descent beneath his ceiling. To get above the clouds and try to plunge through to a landing place among the surrounding peaks would be perilous.

Once, however, Captain Travis had to attempt just that. He had taken off from Santiago in a fog. Up and up he circled, through layer after layer of mighty clouds, soaring to 19,000 feet where the air was cold, the humidity for that temperature near the saturation point. Ice formed in the carburetor and choked the engine. The engine sputtered and almost stopped.

Alot, 18,000 feet, clouds stretching away like ocean surf, shielding jagged peaks in every direction, and no power! Nothing to do but come down and, making allowance for wind drift, hope that he would land in the Santiago basin. But, as he shot into a clear gap among the clouds at about 7,000 feet, the flyer was facing—not the haven of the circumscribed landing place—but a sheer snow wall of mountains. The motor was picking up, he must stay aloft, so he swerved into a canyon that apparently headed to a blind end. But it was his only chance. Above him were dense clouds, thousands of feet thick. Completely encircling him, dimly seen through the vapors, were mighty peaks of the Andes. He had no idea of his location.

Follow River to City Suddenly he saw the canyon curve, and trickling through it was a small creek which must have an outlet. Down the canyon he flew, following the creek, which became broader and broader, and finally spread out into the Mapacho river, which flows into Santiago.

GREEN BAY GOVERNMENT COSTS $34 PER CAPITA

Madison — (P) — The cost of operating and maintaining the general departments of Green Bay amounted to $1,282,576 or $34.11 per capita, in 1930, the census bureau announced in a report received here.

The comparative per capita for 1929 was $33.02 and for 1917, $13.44. The city paid $84,377 for the operation and maintenance of public service enterprises in 1930, and the interest on debt was $168,127. Outlays for permanent improvements, including those for public service enterprises, amounted to $478,189.

Total revenue receipts were $2,193,449, or $58.31 per capita. This represented $659,173 more than the total payments of the year, exclusive of the payments for permanent improvements, and $190,861 more than the total payments including those for permanent improvements. The excess in revenue receipts is reflected in reduction of debt and in purchase of investments.

Earnings of public service enterprises operated by the city represented 10.1 per cent of the total revenue. Property taxes represented 69.6 per cent.

The total funded or fixed debt outstanding Dec. 31, 1930 was $2,959,800 of which $900,000 was for public services enterprises. The assessed valuation of property in Green Bay subject to ad valorem taxes for city corporation was $65,793,059.

CONNOR WINS GOVERNORSHIP OF MISSISSIPPI

Democratic Nomination Also Means Election in Southern State

Jackson, Miss. — (P) — Martin Senneff (Mike) Connor, 41-year-old Covington lawyer-farmer, on the face of nearly complete returns from the Democratic primary run-off, was assured of the governorship of Mississippi today.

From the first hour of returns, Connor took the lead over Hugh L. White, 50-year-old millionaire lumberman, and his majority had increased to 17,550 votes in the returns from 1335 of the 1590 precincts. The vote stood 126,497 for Connor to 109,587 for White.

While yesterday's contest officially meant the Democratic nomination of Connor, it was virtually the same as election as the Republicans do not seriously contest office in Mississippi.

The election also represented a run-off from the regular Aug. 4 primary for three other state offices, attorney general, state tax collector and clerk of the state supreme court.

For attorney general Greek L. Rice defeated Rush M. Knox, former attorney general who resigned under fire and sought vindication. James E. Gully stood well ahead of W. J. Miller and in the contest over the supreme court clerkship, Tom W. Ellis smothered Stewart C. Broom, Bilbo appointee, and carried to defeat the last of the candidates, with any semblance of connection with the faction headed by Governor Theodore G. Bilbo.

Connor faces two tasks—wiping out of a $1,000,000 deficit in the state treasury left by Governor T. G. Bilbo's administration and reinstatement of four of the state's major educational institutions that were dropped by accrediting associations.

The new governor of Mississippi, who takes office next January, is known as "Sure Mike," the smiling Irishman. This was his third race for the governorship. The others were unsuccessful.

GETS HIS DIVORCE DESPITE INJUNCTION

Reno, Nev. — (P) — Despite a Cook County injunction, Frank R. Borton obtained a divorce from Margaret Borton yesterday.

The injunction named Borton and his mother, Dr. Anna Reid of Marlton, Ill., and enjoined him from instituting and financing divorce proceedings on the grounds that Mrs. Borton was "the victim of a mother in law" and that Dr. Reid was forcing her son to obtain a divorce. It was not mentioned because Borton had never been served with the papers.

The plaintiff testified his wife was cruel to him. He said she was constantly jealous of his mother.

MacDonald May Be Hero Or A Political Suicide

London — (P) — J. Ramsay MacDonald, twice Socialist prime minister of Great Britain, took up the reins of non-partisan government today with the realization that either he had committed political suicide or that history would number him among the empire's great statesmen.

In some circles it was said that by going into the wilderness with a handful of followers in a desperate effort to set the nation's financial house in order he had incurred the bitter animosity of the immensely powerful trades union congress and probably won the hostility of a considerable section of the labor party executive.

It was freely commented by these observers that whatever else might happen Mr. MacDonald never again would be the head of a Labor government or even an outstanding figure among Labor politicians. In advocating a slash in the dole, it was said, he had by one step cut himself off from the labor executive and from the great mass of labor trade unionism, representing the very life-blood of the party.

On the contrary, there were those who said that by sacrificing his political ambitions for what he believed to be the ultimate good of the nation he had established himself in the hearts of the people as the man of the hour and that posterity would rank him with Gladstone and Disraeli.

The most obvious point expressed was that the Labor party, the most powerful in the kingdom, had been split from top to bottom by the division in the cabinet which led to the fall of the MacDonald ministry. It was considered that the party might have suffered a blow to its authority and prestige which will cripple it for years to come.

At any rate, an emergency session of parliament will be summoned soon, probably Sept. 5, by the new, non-party national ministry, including in its membership leaders in all three camps. The program as officially expressed is to submit proposals to the house of commons for a very large reduction in expenditure and for provision on an equitable basis of the further funds required to balance the budget.

Whatever measures the government may propose, it is believed, it will have an ample majority in the commons to carry them through, one estimate putting its surplus votes over the opposition as high as 157.

Emphasis is laid on the fact, however, that the present government has been constituted only for a short time—possibly until Jan. 1—and eventually will resign to allow its component parts to split up into their original three units. A general election in the late autumn is widely predicted although it is admitted King George could summon one on the other parliamentary leaders without making an appeal to the voters.

The trades union congress already has explained its attitude towards the new ministry. These words: "Nobody can commit the trade union and the labor government to participation or support of a national government without its consent. That consent has not been asked for and has not been given."

The statement as issued by the executive committee goes on to say that these labor ministers who resigned rather than carry out the policy of drastic economies at the expense of the unemployed, have acted as "labor ministers would be expected to act by the labor movement."

The congress' position is to be discussed by representatives of the labor party executive and the general council at what is expected to prove a vitally important meeting tomorrow.

COUNCIL MAKES PROVISIONS TO COVER TRACKS

Reaches Agreement With Two Utilities to Carry Out Project

Kaukauna — Two resolutions providing for covering the abandoned street car tracks on Lawest and Wisconsin-ave. were adopted at a special meeting of the common council in the municipal building Tuesday evening. Both the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co., and the Wisconsin Public Service Co., agreed by the resolutions to turn the money necessary to do the work over to the city, giving city officials full charge of the project.

Both resolutions were read by Alderman Cooper and motions to adopt them were made by Alderman G. Smith and supported by Alderman Bert Roberts. Some objection was offered by Alderman W. Cooper. He charged that when the agreement was made with the utilities there was unnecessary delay in carrying out preparations to do the work. He said he believed the companies were trying to stall the city off for another year.

Alderman Bert Roberts said he agreed that there was some delay in the preparations to begin the work, but he added that the matter should be settled as soon as possible. In view of the fact that the contract will be let to a local man, who will employ home labor, he supported the proposal to do the work at once.

Agree On Price

Alderman Cooper then moved the mayor and the city clerk be authorized to enter into agreement with the two utilities, with allowances for immediate payment of the cost of the work when the contracts are let. Ray McCarty will do the work at the rate of 85 cents per running foot. He has agreed to use local labor. A width of nine feet amette will be paid to a thickness of one inch thickness over the rails, extending out on both sides to taper off.

Several property owners were in doubt as to what would become of a strip of land between Ninth and Tenth-sts on Crooks ave. Alderman Roberts presented their case to the council. City Attorney J. Lefevre said that the street would have to be narrowed, as it is not in line with the remainder of the street.

Alderman G. Smith moved that the city attorney institute proceedings to vacate the strip of land and to narrow the road to 36 feet to comply with the remainder of the street. The move was supported by Alderman Roberts and the council unanimously.

Property owners along Crooks-ave. where the new pavement will be laid, said they favored doing the work now, if it can be completed before the arrival of cold weather. All of the owners asked that city men be employed if possible.

Alderman Smith moved that the city attorney draw up waivers for the property owners along Crooks ave to sign, with stipulations that the property owner will not be assessed more than the original price, set at $1.97 per running foot. The motion was supported by Alderman E. Brewster, and carried.

Mayor Fargo told the property owners that every step to employ home labor is being used. An attempt to have the state highway commission turn over the amount necessary to do the work to the city council and allow a committee to advertise for bids for the work, also was made, according to Mayor B. W. Fargo.

BELIEVE APPLETON MAN OWNS HEAVIEST MARE IN THE WORLD

BY W. F. WINSEY Weighing 2,250 pounds in working trim and wearing a 25-inch collar, Babe, a four-year-old Belgian mare, owned by Dr. William Madison, Appleton veterinarian, is perhaps the largest and heaviest mare of her age in Outagamie-co, Wisconsin, the United States and the world, according to the opinions of local horsemen who have been consulting the records of the weights of heaviest mares at four years of age. Babe is shapely, spry on her feet and easily managed. In good condition and without any surplus fat on her body, this mare weighs almost as much as the ordinary farm team.

OUTAGAMIE ASYLUM HERD ONE OF BEST IN THIS DISTRICT

Careful Attention Is Given by Keepers to Care and Feeding

BY W. F. WINSEY The herd of high grade Holsteins on the farm of the Outagamie-co asylum as individuals and collectively is one of the best in the county. It includes in the total of 114 head about 50 high producing cows of the breed that are well groomed, and 37 heifers a year old or slightly over that are pictures of perfection and care. The stables are well lighted, airy, well kept and clean.

The milk of the 44 producing cows is skimmed and the skim milk is fed to calves and to 118 Duroc Jersey pigs about four months old.

To feed the asylum herd this fall, the coming winter and next spring, Superintendent Flanagan has all the hay and grain, and silage needed. One hundred acres of corn will supply the silage. He has already filled three silos and expects to fill two more with corn still standing, growing, and well loaded with nearly ripe ears. He is reserving 25 acres of his best corn for cutting and husking.

For fattening the 173 pigs and feeding other farm animals, he has 4,000 baskets of last year's corn in his cribs.

His best 50 acres of corn raised this season grew in fields from which he removed quick grass last summer with a modern quick eradicator and tractor power. With the same kind of equipment he is destroying quack in another 25 acre field this summer and he will perhaps try a crop of corn on the field.

Commercial fertilizer gave his corn a very early start in the spring, he said.

AVOID "ASH-TRAY" BREATH

SMOKE PURE-TOBACCO OLD GOLDS

It isn't good tobacco that spoils the perfect evening . . . by clouding your breath with the odor of stale cigarettes. Lingering and unpleasant cigarette breath comes from the fumes of greasy, ARTIFICIAL flavorings.

OLD GOLD contains no such added substances. It is a PURE-TOBACCO cigarette . . . free of these oily, foreign flavorings that burn into clinging, staining, breath-tainting vapors.

Whether you are a heavy smoker or a light one, you'll like the Nature-flavored OLD GOLDS. Their clean, sun-ripened tobaccos are like honey to your throat . . . And they leave no objectionable odors either on your breath, your clothing, or in the room.
